■ Frosted Tiger on AT&T menu

With temperatures in the 30°s, Tiger Woods (center) had plenty of time to contemplate his driver at the first tee at Poppy Hills Thursday morning. His start — and everybody else's — was delayed almost an hour because of frost on the fairways. Bill Murray (right), playing in the foursome behind Woods, didn't let the frigid, damp delay depress him. He grabbed a young fan's jacket to dry off his hat. But at Wednesday's Celebrity Shootout, Clint Eastwood (left) was hoofing it alone. According to the announcer at the event, Eastwood had to carry his own clubs from the first tee at Pebble Beach because "his caddy has already quit." Forecasters were calling for good weather throughout the tournament, leaving organizers hopeful of a big gate for the charity event. Carmel loses 300 voters

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THE NUMBER of people registered to vote in Carmel-by-the-Sea has dropped by 300 since the April 2000 election.

The Monterey County Registrar of Voters' most recent figures compiled Jan. 5 show 3,044 people registered to vote in Carmel's upcoming election compared to the 3,344 who were eligible to vote in April 2000 .

Junel Davidsen, assistant registrar of voters, said her office will

Monastery won't pay injured realtor $94,000

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CARMELITE Monastery has rejected an arbitrator's decision that it should pay $94,000 to realtor Herma Smith-Curtis and her husband Donn. They sued last year after she tripped on what she said was a broken step at the monastery and fractured her shoulder and toe.

Attorney Joseph Russell presided over the court-mandated arbitration

GERARD ROSE TOUTS ACTION, NOT MORE STUDIES

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL CITY Councilman Gerard Rose believes the strength of the current city council is its ability to know when to stop studying issues and take action, and he thinks Mayor Sue McCloud, council member Paula Hazdovac and he deserve to be reelected because of their numerous accomplishments.

Rose pointed to the completion of several longstanding civic projects — such as the Local Coastal Program and the Design Traditions Project — as examples that the current council knows how to get the job done.

"The problem is some people can't close the deal," Rose said. "Previous councils had decades to close the LCP and frankly, there was no indication they ever would. It took decisive action and real leadership to bring that about and it wasn't an easy process."

Rose has served on the council for the past two years. After he narrowly missed being elected to the council in 2000, Rose was appointed to fill the seat

KEN WHITE WANTS TO LURE TOURISTS BACK TO CARMEL

By TAMARA GRIPPI

FORMER MAYOR and city council candidate Ken White believes the city should immediately spend $200,000 — at least — to revive Carmel's anemic tourist industry.

"We need to allocate more money, even out of the reserves — $100,000 isn't enough," White said. "It should have been done two months ago. Sitting and waiting to see what the budget figures will be isn't smart when you've got a real emergency."

White, who remembers how hard the city was hit by recession in the early 1990s, wants to increase funding of the Carmel Business Association's marketing program to heavily target the Bay Area, San Joaquin Valley and the Los Angeles Basin — key tourism markets for the city.

"When I was mayor the first year, we were facing a deficit and we had to cut over $1 million out of a $6 million or $7 million budget," White said. "It was a real learning experience on how to deal with a budget in a decreasing income period and that's what we have now."

White noted that he was the first mayor to ask the council to support funding an annual $100,000 grant for the CBA's marketing program. "Considering the fact that two-thirds of your budget comes from the business community, you really should support them."

The four-term former mayor said he worked hard during his tenure to bring

Mini mission gains grand status

The house behind it may be the town's original one-room school, but it was this pint-sized model of the Carmel Mission in the old school's yard that merited an historic designation by the city's official preservation committee this week. The owner of the two structures was pleased. For details, see page 21A.

Blanket drive aims to ease winter for homeless

By TAMARA GRIPPI

YOUR OLD blankets and jackets could make a world of difference to a homeless person trying to survive in this bitterly cold weather.

Shelter Outreach Plus will collect blankets, jackets, sweaters, scarves, mittens and socks this Saturday and Sunday at First Presbyterian Church of Monterey and then again on Feb. 9 and 10 at Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on Carmel Valley Road.

Linda Forkash, director of outreach services for the organization, said the blanket drive is an emergency response to the dire conditions faced by people living on the street.

"We're trying to stop homeless people from dying from hypothermia," Forkash said. "They're crying for blankets and we're out of blankets."

'They're crying for blankets and we're out of blankets.'

— Linda Forkash

New socks are also a godsend for local homeless people. "There's nothing worse than wearing wet socks," Forkash said.

The blankets and winter clothing will be distributed through a mobile outreach service team (MOST) — one of Shelter Outreach's many programs.

MOST consists of a three-member team that travels around the county in a van distributing essentials — food, blankets, toiletries — to homeless people. The team provides first aid and even transports people badly in need of medical attention to the hospital. They also try to steer people into programs designed to get them off the street.

Shelter Outreach Plus accepts donations of blankets and food all year round. If you observe someone in need of its services, call 384-3362.

"Yeah, they're homeless and yeah, they shouldn't be, but they're still out there and they're still human beings," Forkash said.

The blanket drive will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Feb. 2 and from noon to 4 p.m. Feb. 3 at First Presbyterian Church, 510 El Dorado Street in Monterey.

Donations of warm winter clothing will also be accepted from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Feb. 9 and from 1 to 4 p.m. Feb. 10 at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on Carmel Valley Road next to Rancho Cañada.

County may ban big houses in valley, Pebble Beach

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A CAMPAIGN to set an upper limit on home sizes in Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach — no matter how big a lot is — has passed its first hurdle, with county planners adding language to the proposed Monterey County General Plan Update encouraging such limits.

Several policies proposed in the update would require officials to consider size limits and other design restrictions on new single-family homes in the two upscale areas as well as other rural parts of the county, according to Lynn Burgess, senior administrative analyst on the general plan team.

In April 2000, members of the Del Monte Forest Land Use Advisory Committee complained about "oversized" homes in the forest and asked the county to set a maximum house size for lots 16,000 square feet and bigger.

The following November, a Carmel Valley Property Owners Association member asked the Carmel Valley Land Use Advisory Committee to recommend prohibiting homes bigger than 6,000 square feet, no matter how large the lot. The recommendation was passed on to county planners.

The first draft of the proposed General Plan Update, made public in December, calls for homes in rural areas to be "proportional to their site" and to "blend with the rural character of the area" — language that could trigger a new size limit.

The plan also requires the county to "review and revise, as necessary, the standards for size and design" of homes.

"That commits the county to acting on this," Burgess said. "It's not something we can just later ignore."

Such changes — which could also include limits on grading, the height of retaining walls, architectural design, and "other things we can do that will mitigate the impact that a large home would have in a rural center and other rural lands" — won't be considered until after the county approves the General Plan Update several months from now.

"Instead of adopting size limits that differ among areas, we suggest doing this as a second step in the General Plan process, developing the design standards as we look at all development standards under the new General Plan," Burgess said.

That will help keep the policies consistent throughout the county, while allowing special rules for certain areas as needed, according to Burgess.

"This may be one example where we can say the size of

Police & Sheriff's Log

Carmel cop assumes role of batman

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 20

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report that while walking two dogs on the beach, one on a leash and the other under voice command, the leashless dog approached a pile of clothing. It appeared the animal may have urinated on the clothing but examination by the person revealed it had not. A couple then approached her and were angered over the incident and demanded her personal information. Due to confrontational attitude of the couple, she refused to giver her name but offered to have the clothing laundered. The male half grabbed her arm to attempt to take the dog's leash but she was able to break free. She was reluctant to file any report of assault but wanted the incident noted since the couple said they would file a report in addition to taking her photograph.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: 911 hang-up call from a Lincoln residence. Several calls have originated from this property over the last several weeks. The residence is unoccupied and under construction.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report that someone was on a Dolores jobsite driving a backhoe. Upon arrival, no one was working. The engine was warm.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Contacted a group of artists setting up a table with various artwork on the sidewalk in front of Devendorf Park. Advised them of CMC regarding conducting business without a permit. They understood and agreed to move on.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported her wallet possibly stolen from her purse while she was shopping in town. While investigating the incident, it was discovered her wallet had been turned in to Coach Leathers by a citizen who found it on the sidewalk. Owner checked her wallet and nothing was missing.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported a vehicle was parked in his private parking stall on Red Eagle Alley. Vehicle gone on arrival.

Carmel area: Report of a woman at Mission Ranch asking guests for money.

Big Sur: Gorda employees advised of a subject camping across from Gorda and causing problems by entering the store and trying to use employee facilities. The man was contacted.

Big Sur: Gorda resident requested a welfare check on his estranged wife on Willow Creek Road.

Carmel area: Vehicle check done on a BMW parked in front of a Guadalupe residence. The vehicle was not wanted.

MONDAY, JANUARY 21

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Contacted a Lasuen resident on report of a bat in his residence. Bat removed from the location.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspicious noise coming from behind a Lincoln bar. Noise was the bakery located on Ocean. Checked OK.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a subject who was recently evicted stomping up and down the stairs at a Mission residence and leaving the loud engine of his truck running. Area checked, subject was GOA (gone on arrival).

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female subject requested officers check with the cab company she called which was now late in arriving at Dolores and Sixth. Stood by with her until the cab arrived at 0235 hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject contacted after he was observed stuffing an object into the bushes adjacent to a parked vehicle in the unlit area at Monte Verde and Seventh. He was cooperative and retrieved the skateboard he claimed he hides in the bushes whenever he goes uptown. He was interviewed at the scene and released.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Concerned citizen reported two subjects swimming in the bay for an extended period of time in inclement weather. Prior to contact, the couple returned to the beach area and did not appear to display any symptoms of hypothermia or any other medical problems related to cold water immersion. No contact made with the couple.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver contacted regarding his parked vehicle displaying an expired registration tab. He produced a citation he received earlier today from Daly City PD. Carmel Chevron notified to cancel tow response.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of an older model green VW bus cruising the area on Scenic. Area check negative.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Camino Real resident called for assistance regarding her vehicle which was not maneuverable because it was lodged between a dirt slope and a dirt driveway. Tow summoned for assistance in order to have the vehicle winched out from its position.

Carmel area: Neighbor dispute on Aguajito Road concerning ownership of a fence.

Carmel area: Woman reported she lost her

Woman arrested in forgery

MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff's Deputies arrested 28-year-old Gloria Maria Colon Jan. 15 on suspicion of forging and cashing checks stolen from a car parked near La Playa Hotel last November, according to Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Terry Chandler.

Although police believe she cashed five of the stolen checks in December and January — one in Watsonville for $275, two in Salinas for $250 and $400, and two more for $379 and $300 in Castroville — Chandler said he does not suspect she is the culprit who smashed the car window and stole the checks, cash and other valuables.

"She's in custody for possession of stolen property and forgery on the checks," he said. She claimed she got the checks from somebody but won't say who.

A deputy spotted Colon in a Prunedale shopping center Jan. 15 after learning that a woman matching her description had just cashed a check in Castroville, according to Chandler.

"I think when she passed the last check, the guy made a copy of her drivers' license," Chandler said. "The sheriff's department put a BOL [be on the lookout] out for her and one of the deputies saw her."

Chandler said he has sent his report to the district attorney's office, where it will be combined with the forged check files from the sheriff's department and the Salinas Police Department.

Colon was transported to Monterey County Jail after her Jan. 15 arrest, but is no longer in custody.

No charges filed against principal of Serra School in hair-pulling incident

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

NO CHARGES of child neglect, endangerment or battery will be filed against Junipero Serra School principal Virginia Higgins, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office decided last week.

"[Deputy D.A.] Charlie Keeley just feels it doesn't belong in the criminal arena," said Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Terry Chandler. The victims' parents and and their attorneys have already been informed of the decision.

The allegations surfaced after two parents filed complaints against the principal last November, reporting to police that Higgins had pulled their sons' hair.

Higgins was placed on administrative leave shortly after the Nov. 27 and 28 incidents, according to Chandler, while the police department and the school conducted their investigations.

But the Diocese of Monterey reinstated Higgins after finding no fault with her actions, attorney Al Ham said.

Chandler said he understood why the D.A. didn't prosecute.

"There's a fine line in a corporal-punishment type of situation," he said. "I don't think her intentions were to hurt these kids."

CITY OF CARMEL EMPLOYEES ELECT TO UNIONIZE

By TAMARA GRIPPI

MOST OF of Carmel's municipal employees are now union members.

The city's general employees association and manager's association voted last spring to join the AFL-CIO and, for the first time, union representatives — instead of city workers — sat at the negotiating table with Carmel City Administrator Rich Guillen.

And in October the two city groups formally joined the Laborers International Union of North America, AFL-CIO. The city's fire and police employee associations did not join the union — those groups hire their own private representatives to assist them in labor negotiations.

Rose Franzen, network administrator at the library served as negotiator for the general employees association in the past and said she's happy with the results of union representation.

Both associations agreed to a three year contract with 3 percent annual raises effective last June.

A stalemate

Franzen said the employee groups made the decision to join the union after negotiations with Guillen reached a stalemate last spring.

"We needed a professional to get us past the sticking point and now, as far as I know, we're getting along swimmingly," Franzen said.

Carmel building inspector Tim Meroney, who belongs to the managers union, said membership in the union will relieve employees of the stress of negotiations. The vote to join the union was nearly unanimous for both employee groups, Meroney said.

Franzen agreed that the benefit of union representation makes life less awkward for everyone involved. Negotiations weren't easy, she said. "Plus, it was very hard to forget that you were talking to your boss's boss."

Better benefits

In addition, Meroney said, the AFL-CIO will take over the administration of health insurance for employees and offer an additional retirement package.

"The union was able to lower the cost of health insurance for the city as well as the employees' deductible," Franzen said.

The AFL-CIO is representing 45 general employees and seven managers of the city's total 90 employees, Guillen said. Recently hired department heads, such as the fire chief, police chief and planning director are considered "at will" employees and are not part of the union.

Guillen said he has no problems with the union."I think it's working fine," he said. "Negotiations went well and I hope everyone is satisfied."

Carmelite says neighbors cut trees without permission

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ALBERT GIORDANO, the Ladera Drive property owner named as a "real party in interest" in a lawsuit filed by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, told The Pine Cone last week that he had nothing to do with the illegal trimming of oaks on his property in late 2000. He pointed the finger at his neighbor, Donald Hayes, who is the defendant in the suit.

According to Giordano, Hayes trespassed on his land and topped nine coast live oaks without his permission. The city is seeking damages because the trees in question are in a scenic easement on Giordano's property.

The lawsuit, filed by the city in Monterey County Superior Court last December, claims it will cost more than $10,000 to remove, replant and maintain new trees to replace those cut by Hayes — and he should pay for it, according to Stephanie Atigh, the attorney representing Carmel.

"The reason Dr. Giordano was named as a real party in interest is that he owns the property on which the city has an easement and from which the trees were destroyed," she said. "And because of that, any court orders regarding remediation for the damaged trees would involve his property and he needs to be on notice of that. He's not a defendant."

Giordano said he is the victim, not the culprit.

"These people trespassed and cut about 20 feet off nine trees," Giordano told The Pine Cone. "They were trying to improve the view they get of Carmel Mission."

Giordano said he filed complaints with Carmel police after the Nov. 27, 2000, incident, and has since hired a professional consultant to appraise the damage.

"The trees aren't dead," he said. "Nobody knows if they'll die a year or eight years or 20 years from now."

Not only were the trees trimmed without his permission, he said, but he was not even home when the neighbor's gardener and three other men came onto his property to top them.

"I was out of town, but I came home while they were still doing it with chain saws," he said. "I chased them off the property. My lot has 70 oak trees and I can't do any trimming."

Efforts to reach Hayes were unsuccessful.

A neighbor who wanted a better view of Carmel Mission reportedly trespassed on a Ladera Drive property and topped nine coast live oaks growing on a scenic easement. The City of Carmel is suing to recover $10,000 in damages.

Unsung no more

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

COME ON out and celebrate some of Carmel's unsung heroes at the Feb. 5 city council meeting. The council will be presenting awards to three very deserving, but modest, Carmelites who work hard to help their fellow citizens.

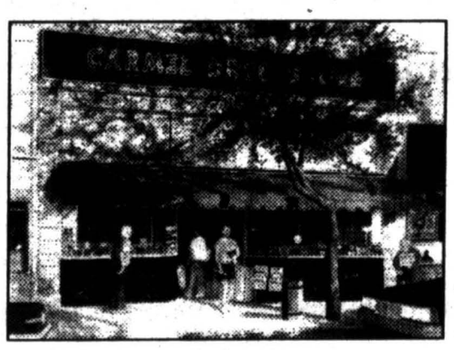
Cavan Hardy reaches out to some isolated, elderly residents in need of a friend by heating meals and delivering mail. He even drove a woman all the way to visit her family in Southern California.

Kay Prine, the originator of the Carmel walking tour, educates locals and visitors alike about Carmel's quirky history and its colorful inhabitants.

Vi Fox volunteers twice a month at the Carmel Foundation and the Carmel Red Cross to check the blood pressure of residents who need help looking after their health.

These are just a few of the things Unsung Heroes do for the community. Find out more about their contributions and give them a pat on the back at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 5 at City Hall.

The more things change, the more the Carmel Drug Store stays the same.
Come experience the same old fashioned service the Carmel Drug Store has been providing our community with since 1910.



Please stop by and see for yourself, or call 624-3819 for prescription price quotes and complimentary delivery.

vacated by Sue McCloud when she was elected mayor.

The councilman said he was surprised by a press release circulated by council challengers Barbara Livingston, Jim Wright and Ken White when they announced their candidacies. In it, they asserted that the "face of the village and its traditions are [being] seriously undermined."

Instead, Rose argued that the current council has done much for the people and traditions of Carmel — expanding hours at city hall, televising council meetings, enacting a three-year budget and clearing the way for the Sunset Center renovation to begin.

"I have to ask myself, have they been awake during the last two years?" Rose said. He also called the current council a "fairly balanced" group.

"The council has not been monolithic in any sense of the word," he said. "Although there were a number of unanimous votes, there were also a number of split votes. I don't think anyone can count me voting with Sue McCloud all the time or with Paula, Dick [Ely] or Barbara all the time."

Safety first

The councilman said he has a number of issues he'd like to turn his attention to during the next term, including the parking crunch, fire safety and deferred maintenance. And he didn't hesitate to offer some specific ideas on how to tackle those problems.

Since Carmel's emergency personnel don't have the benefit of street addresses when they're responding to a rescue call, Rose would like to implement a global positioning system (GPS) to provide emergency workers with the precise location of all homes and businesses, in case more traditional Carmel methods of giving directions don't work.

Rose, who serves as the vice president on the Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance board, said GPS technology is relatively inexpensive and would be easy to use.

"It only makes sense to have some sort of backup when you get an emergency call so you're sure you're in the right spot," Rose said.

The councilman also wants to move forward with a retrofit of the Carmel firehouse, which is currently out of compliance with earthquake safety standards.

And Rose wants to solicit proposals from the California Department of Forestry and the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District "to see if we can't improve delivery service of the fire systems."

The lack of parking in Carmel is a problem that has been discussed for decades, Rose said, and he believes the solution is a multi-level parking structure at the Sunset Center parking lot.

Such a structure should be recessed and put underground to the maximum extent possible.

"Until the parking problem is solved, every 90 minutes there will be a merry-go-round in this town," Rose said.

The councilman would also like the city to take a more aggressive approach in tackling deferred maintenance. "The capital improvement plan is filled with projects that simply can't wait another two or three years," he said.

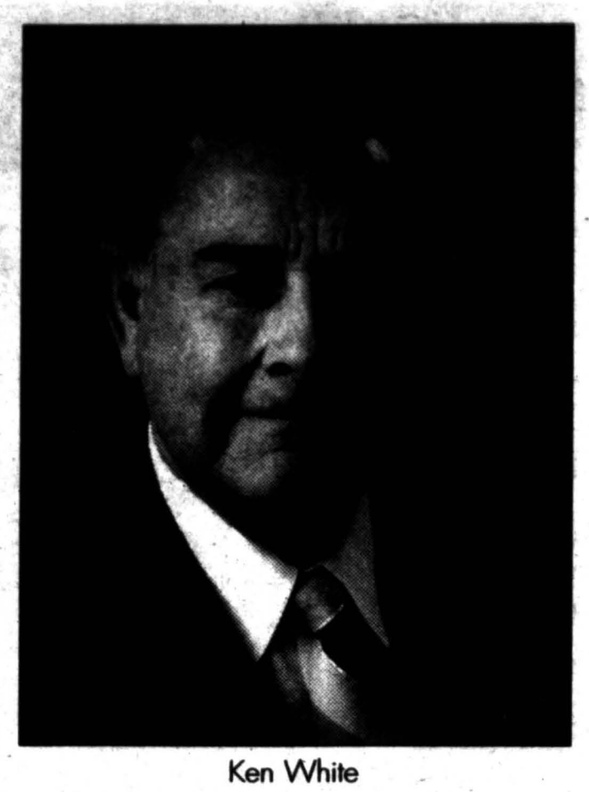
In order to keep up with those projects, the city should hire a full-time grant writer to help public works director Jim Cullem find the money he needs to pay for much needed repairs and improvements, Rose said.

The councilman said the city must also take a hard look at selling some of its property which is not being utilized and is in need of major repair.

Rather than putting more money into refurbishing the Scout House and Flanders Mansion, the city could use the money from the sale of those properties for better purposes — such as a new parking garage, he said.

"How many times do we have to study Flanders?" Rose asked. "Are we going to study it every time we have an election? It would cost a small fortune to refurbish the structure."

Gerard Rose



Ken White

Incumbent city councilman Gerard Rose (left) says the council has a long list of accomplishments, including finishing the city's capital plan, getting Sunset Center construction underway, and putting a new set of design guidelines in place. Former Mayor Ken White (right), a council candidate, has said he proposed a big increase in spending by the city to bring more tourists to town. Profiles of both candidates begin on page one. Election day is April 9.

Help for the Forest Theater

Rose said he also wants to get serious about taking on the deferred maintenance and improvements needed at the Forest Theater.

He suggested one of the nonprofit foundations affiliated with the Forest Theater should enter into a long-term lease with the city "so the people who can and will be making use of it are personally on the hook to ensure the facility is maintained."

A legal relationship with the city will also help private foundations in their efforts to raise money for repairs, he said.

In addition, Rose said he hopes the city can expand the cultural opportunities at Sunset Center. Rose has been talking with some of the folks at the Carmel Bach Festival about the possibility of instituting the European tradition of music festivals immediately prior to Christmas and Easter.

"I think it would enormously enhance not only Carmel's image but also enhance the effective use of Sunset Center," he said.

Lastly, Rose hopes something can be done to make council meetings more pleasant.

"The meetings frequently take on a rather dour tone," he said. "We need to lighten up and have some fun. This isn't rocket science. Many of the issues are the same things I saw on council agendas 20 years ago."

Laureles Grade litterbugs keep CVPOA volunteers busy

■ HUBCAP, ANYONE?

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IS THERE a story behind the 40 empty half-pint peppermint schnapps bottles somebody scattered along a stretch of Los Laureles Grade?

Probably, and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association members who pick up the detritus left behind by thoughtless motorists have made one up just in case the truth never surfaces.

"Some guy worked in Salinas and lived in Carmel Valley and couldn't drink at home," surmised CVPOA member Rod Mills. The mystery schnapps drinker probably chose peppermint to cover up the smell of alcohol and would pitch the bottle out his window toward the end of his daily commute so that he wouldn't get in trouble with his wife.

Wanting to do its part to keep the valley beautiful while boosting its name recognition, the CVPOA signed up for the Los Laureles Grade litter removal through a program offered by the Monterey County's public works department.

The county offered advice on proper roadside cleanup: Don't touch dangerous items, watch out for snakes and oncoming traffic, stay out of the road and don't prowl in heavy brush.

In exchange for donning orange vests, wielding trash-spearing sticks and foraging for garbage along the twisty road — on which some motorists like to leadfoot and bicyclists can silently whiz by at 50 mph — the CVPOA gets its name on a sign marking its adoption of the road.

"We're always trying to let people know we're here," Mills said. "We have had a lot of people call up and volunteer, some not even in the organization."

But the cleanup serves as more than good PR — it also offers exercise and camaraderie to the volunteers.

Neil Agron, a Carmel Knolls Drive resident and CVPOA director, embarked on his first Los Laureles Grade cleanup day Jan. 27 with seven volunteers. It took just over an hour for the volunteers to clean the two-mile section.

"I thought it was great. I'd do it again," he said. "It's good exercise, the scenery is gorgeous and the company is superb."

The majority of trash littering the pristine area came from fast food restaurants — none located even remotely nearby — but Agron also found chaise lounge cushions and an electrical transformer. His partner, Peter Neumeier, found a plastic container full of hazardous waste — used motor oil, he suspected — left in a culvert alongside the road. Mills has discovered four Subaru hubcaps, mufflers, shovels and a large wooden spool that once held heavy electrical cable.

The volunteers also recycle aluminum cans, but they stuff anything else they don't want to keep — which is most of it — into bright orange bags for pickup by the public works department, which also handles hazardous materials like the mystery sludge discovered by Neumeier.

Mills schedules litter removal for a couple of hours every two months or so and encouraged interested residents to pitch in by calling 659-3745.

"It's a beautiful walk — it's quite a different experience than driving over the grade because you see so much more — and we're always looking for volunteers," he said.

Carmel hires La Quinta official to run planning department

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA WILL have a new planning director by the end of February, city administrator Rich Guillen said this week. He selected Christine di Iorio, planning manager for the 18,000-resident Southern California desert city of La Quinta since 1995, from a pool of 40 applicants for the $102,852-a-year position.

Guillen touted di Iorio's work experience and personality. "She's a consensus builder," he said, adding that debates between historic preservationists and developers have surfaced in La Quinta just as they have in Carmel. Di Iorio helped form La Quinta's historic preservation committee and design review board.

Di Iorio said she is looking forward to coming to Carmel, which will represent a drastic change from working for one of the fastest growing cities in the state.

"Here we're developing Walmarts and gas stations," she said, adding she plans to be in greater contact with the community in Carmel than she can be in La Quinta. "The work will be more sensitive to quality design and development."

After graduating with a masters degree from UC Riverside in 1985 — her thesis focused on the seismic retrofit of pre-1934 unreinforced masonry buildings — di Iorio began her planning career in Riverside. She worked for Claremont as an associate planner, San Juan Capistrano as a senior planner, and as an independent consultant before being hired by La Quinta.

"She has a good track record, having stayed places four or five years, and every time she's gone somewhere it has been promotion for her," Guillen said.

Although she lacks experience with the California Coastal Commission — the agency that controls planning here until it approves Carmel's Local Coastal Program — Guillen said he has faith she will learn quickly.

"I was told [by La Quinta officials] she's very technically capable, very professional and a friendly person to work with," he said. "I think those are very good qualities, especially in a high-profile position like the planning director is in this city."

But Guillen's choice has some asking why acting planning director Chip Rerig didn't get the job. Councilman Gerard Rose said last September that the city could save the $18,500 it planned to spend on an executive search by looking within.

Guillen said di Iorio has the experience he wanted.

"Obviously she has a good track record — she's been a planner ever since she graduated from college in 1985 — and she's worked every level," he said. "She has been at the front counter and has worked her way up. She brings broad-based experience with her."

Rerig said he was "very disappointed" not to have gotten the job, but that he wants to stay with the city and is discussing his options with Guillen.

"It's like what Tennyson said: ''Tis better to have loved and lost, Than never to have loved at all,'" he said, adding that he wanted to thank Carmel residents and fellow employees for their support and encouragement while he served as acting planning director. "It's been great, but I need to put my support behind her."

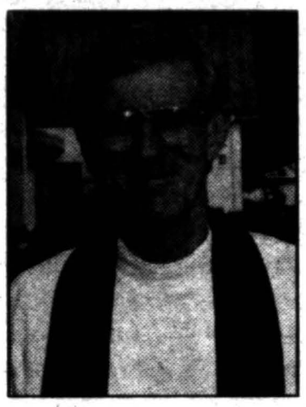
Former All Saints' Day School pastor finds new ministry in the mountains

By MARY BROWNFIELD

For 17 years he offered Holy Communion to small children, led an entire school in reciting The Lord's Prayer and walked the halls of All Saints' Day School in the garb of an Episcopal priest. But 10 months after his retirement last year, Father Paul Danielson's office is now the great outdoors and his uniform includes a pair of sturdy hiking boots.

And instead of ministering to teachers and kids, he now educates people of all ages on an issue near and dear to his heart: wilderness conservation.



Father Paul Danielson

Danielson, an avid hiker and member of the Ventana Wilderness Alliance, helped identify 14 areas owned by the forest service he said "need to be kept in their pristine state," and is now working to convince the public.

Danielson works on the California Wild Heritage Campaign — a collection of environmental groups helping to preserve the government's "roadless areas" that were supposed to remain undeveloped. The campaign formed more than a year ago after environmentalists discovered "acreage the size of Yosemite had been lost over a 20-year period," according to Danielson.

Father Paul Danielson often spends his weekends showing hikers the scenic areas owned by the U.S. Forest Service that he believes are worthy of being maintained in their pristine state.

To help people learn about preserving many of the scenic gems owned by the government and keeping them available to hikers, hunters and fishermen, Danielson leads groups on weekend hikes.

"Sometimes when people hear about a wilderness campaign, they get a little nervous because they think big government is going to come in and take away the land and not let us use it," he said. "But what it means is that existing pristine lands will remain that way for generations to come."

A wilderness designation for public lands means any roads or private inholdings can remain and public access will continue, but nothing commercial can be built, and motorized vehicles and mountain bikes will be prohibited.

He hopes the "show-me" hikes and slide presentations made by CWHC members will encourage people from all walks of life to send letters to their legislators in favor of preservation.

"This makes for a stronger case," Danielson said, because when the government eventually mulls over legislation for more protection to wilderness areas, they will "see that it's not just environmentalists who want it."

Danielson said he would also like to see portions of several rivers, including the Carmel River, the Little Sur River, Tassajara Creek and the Arroyo Seco River, designated as "wild and scenic." No new dams can be placed on rivers carrying that designation, but the waters can still be used by rafters, swimmers, fishermen and hunters, he said.

Although he misses his All Saints' colleagues and students — "There's something very special about the energy and the enthusiasm of that environment," he said — Danielson is excited about his new work.

"Not only does it allow me to get out into the wilderness areas, it gives me a good justification for doing so," he said, adding that he enjoys helping community members "discover some of the gems in their own backyards that they may not have been aware of, and to see them get excited."

"It is a science, the study of a lifetime, in which you may exhaust yourself, but never your subject. It is a contest, a duel or melee, calling for courage, skill, strategy and self control. It is a test of temper, a trial of honor, a revealer of character. It affords a chance to play the man and act the gentleman. It means going into God's out-of-doors, getting close to nature, fresh air, exercise, a sweeping away of the mental cobwebs, genuine recreation of the tired tissues. It is a cure for care, an antidote to worry. It includes companionship with friends, social intercourse, opportunities for courtesy, kindliness and generosity to an opponent. It promotes not only physical health but moral force."

WHITE

everyone to the table. "I get along with anybody and I've shown that," he said. "It's too small a community to pick fights with people."

White pointed to his leadership of the business district advisory committee — a residents and business group instituted during former Mayor Jean Grace's time — as an important step forward in bringing the community together.

Another breakthrough was the mayor's breakfast — a monthly gathering started by White, to which two representatives from every group in town were invited to come together and talk about issues.

White remembered the first couple of meetings were rather chilly, with two groups of people clearly divided on either sides of the table. So White brought in a peace pipe, complete with turkey feathers, to lighten things up a bit.

"I told them, 'If we're not going to talk and work together, we're going to stop this meeting.'"

'An independent voice'

White's call for doubling the funding for the CBA distances him from the other two candidates — Barbara Livingston and Jim Wright — who rode up to city hall with him to announce their campaigns as a team. Both Livingston and Wright have opposed the $100,000 annual contributions to the CBA for tourism promotion. White promised to be an independent voice on other council issues if he is elected.

His proudest accomplishment from his eight years as mayor is the Sunset Center renovation project. Building consensus for that undertaking put White's diplomacy to the test.

"When we started formulating a plan, there was a pretty large group — maybe 60 to 70 percent — of people against it," White said. "When you change a mother school that everybody is associated with, people object."

White said it took a lot of time, research and one-on-one conversations to win people over. "I told people, 'Sunset is a dowager queen who needs a facelift.'"

The former mayor believes the city has already waited too long to start work on the seismic retrofit of the Carmel fire station.

"The thing that bothers me is there is a couple of million dollars of equipment and invaluable personnel in a building that is not earthquake proof," he said.

White said he would also like to get the much needed refurbishment underway at Forest Theater and Scout House. "I know the council is aware of these things," he said. "Someone needs to stimulate movement."

Two years after losing to Sue McCloud by only 36 votes, White said he joined the council race to bring his years of experience and independence.

"I've seen quite a few 4-1 votes on the council and at this point I'm not judging who's right or wrong, but it's important to have an independent voice to ask people to step back and look at the issue carefully," White said.

White noted that during his tenure, he often provided the swing vote on a variety of issues. "A number of people told me that they never really knew where I would vote and I was pleased with that."

Providing a choice

Making the decision to enter the 2002 council race was a tough one for White. He agreed to throw his hat in the ring just before the deadline.

"He thought someone else would run and no one would," said his wife, Jean.

"I wanted to give people a choice and make a clear distinction between the incumbents and challengers," White said.

That difference boils down to leadership experience — particularly on such important matters as the city budget — he said.

He noted that many of the projects that have come to fruition within the last two years: the Sunset Center renovation, Design Traditions project and the new historic preservation program, were set in place during his tenure.

White said he was disturbed by some recent developments in Carmel politics, including the contentious relationship between the city and the California Coastal Commission and the unionization of city employees. (See story page 6A.)

"We have a tradition in Carmel of always working with and talking with our employees," White said. "I'm disturbed that we reached a point where unions are being formed. It's a relationship that sounds like something is wrong and I'd like to find out what it is."

White said he was concerned that some council members "have chosen to take on the coastal commission."

"The coastal commission is in charge of the Local Coastal Program," he said. "You don't pick a fight with a group that's going to judge the results of your plan."

White, who lives in a Carmel house built in 1910 by his great aunt and uncle, coached wrestling, gymnastics and football during his 34 years as a teacher at Monterey High.

White has been called on by five Carmel mayors — including Barney Laiolo, Charlotte Townsend and Clint Eastwood — to help out with city projects.

"Jean and I are really the third generation living here," White said. "This family has been a presence in this city for a long time. Giving back to the community is part of life."

MONASTERY

January 7. Based on the evidence presented during the hearing, Russell awarded Herma Smith-Curtis $92,000 in damages from the Carmel Monastery of Our Lady of St. Therese (O.C.D.) Discalced Carmelite Nuns. He awarded Donn Curtis, who sued for loss of consortium, $2,000 to be paid by the monastery.

Although the court required the arbitration proceeding to take place, neither side was obligated to accept its result, according to attorney Robert Ponce, representing the Curtises.

"That arbitration award is part of judicial arbitration — it's not binding — so either party has the option to reject it," he said.

Attorney Michelle Kennedy, hired by insurance company Safeco to represent the monastery, officially rejected the award in a court document filed Jan. 28 and demanded a jury trial.

"We got an award that indicated there was no liability on the plaintiff but we really feel the accident was primarily if not entirely her fault," Kennedy said. "That's what prompted the [demand for a] trial."

The realtor said she filed the suit only to recover the costs of medical bills and ongoing physical therapy.

"I took quite a fall — head first on a staircase — and I don't know that I will ever recover from that," she told The Pine Cone. "Nobody's more sorry than I am that it happened, but what can I do? I've had a lot of medical expenses, and I haven't been able to work."

It now looks as though the case will go to trial June 10, unless agreement is reached in a mandatory settlement conference scheduled for May 17. Ponce said he and his clients will continue researching the matter in preparation for trial, if the lawsuit goes that far. Although the case could be tried by a judge, Kennedy said she typically requests jury trials in such cases.

"We prefer trying a case before a jury rather than a judge — I think you get a more satisfactory verdict that way," she said. Judges are better equipped to answer matters of law, "but this is really a question of fact rather than law. I think it's better to have more heads in the room."

Lighthouse gang receives rewards for adventures

THE CENTRAL Coast Lighthouse Keepers are a hardy bunch — as evidenced by the awards received at their annual dinner at Carmel Women's Club. The year's 13,600 hours of Point Sur State Historic Park docent work were highlighted.

"All of these people are jewels," volunteer chief Boonie Covell raved . . . A surprise guest of honor was Harry Miller, who was only four months old when his dad became the lighthouse keeper in 1928, and had to be tied down so the wind wouldn't carry him away. His dad made him a special harness because Harry kept slipping out of the plain rope. Del & Myrna Meyer conceived the idea of inviting him and hosted the Miller family, who live in Chico . . . Special awards were given to Marguerite Moore for outstanding service, Richard Reynolds for his way with the printed word ("He can take mush and turn it into something good!") and Joe Ponsiano for his work on the preservation crew. Joe was also given the Volunteer of the Year award by the State Parks team . . . The event was also a fundraiser to continue the restoration work.

Gag awards included the Rubber Duck to Elizabeth Muto, "to measure the depth of a deep puddle where the car is stuck," according to Harvey Raider . . . Last year's filming by the National Geographic and the History Channel will air soon . . . Beth & John Neidel flew in from the Midwest to attend the event . . . State park rangers Linda Rath and Hal Latta told funny stories about the lighthouse . . . Mary Jane Hammerland whizzed about in a wheelchair due to some leg surgery . . . Pam Lynette, attending with sister Diane, is now living in San Diego. She was in the Coast Guard Reserves working in Monterey but after 9/11 was summoned to active duty down south . . . Others there included John & Carol O'Neil, Paula Walling, Joyce Fowler, Kathleen & Doug Williams, Harvey Raider, Dr. Alan & Lyn Rosen, Jack & Betty Marsh, Eleanor Wylde Morrice & Kevin Hanstick, and Norma Menard.

(Docent orientation begins 1 p.m. on Feb. 10 at Hudson House near Point Lobos. For info, call Ron Saxton, 384-6496.)

. . . and, by the way . . .

HERE'S SOME advice on what NOT to do when flying internationally with a toy poodle tagging along:

Pine Needles

By Sissi Heleki

—Do NOT take a detour between getting off the transit bus from the plane and entering the terminal building in Frankfurt. Regardless of how desperately you want your dog to pee before an 11-hour flight.

Try as you may, ignoring security guards yelling at you in German inexorably pushes your heartbeat into overdrive.

And it further distracts your dog who, even after six weeks of hobnobbing with uncouth European brethren, still thinks using pavement as outhouse material is uncivilized.

—Do NOT take your dog out of her carrier while waiting in San Francisco at the luggage carousel. Unless, of course, you LIKE being the center of attention.

The one thing GUARANTEED to incite mutiny in the U.S. Customs Beagle Brigade is the sight of competition. Ever try to hurriedly shove a snarling, barking, squirming toy poodle back into her carrier?

—Do NOT carry dog food in your luggage.

The Beagle Brigade — out for blood after being provoked earlier — will make the handler tear apart every bit of your luggage, confiscating not only the dog food, but the Cuban cigars.

HERE'S YOUR PROOF: BEST FOOD OFTEN THE SIMPLEST

THE FIRST time I ever had sole doré was in Venice, Italy several years before moving there to live. It was a revelation. I couldn't believe how wonderful it was, and coerced the waiter into telling me how it was prepared.

Surely I had eaten it before in San Francisco, where I resided for a number of years. Or in New York City, where I frequented a marvelous seafood restaurant on West 46th Street. If I had eaten it there, it had not tasted like the Venetian version, which was a filet of plump sole, first dipped lightly in flour, then into a beaten egg wash, then shaken and dipped again lightly in the flour before sautéeing in butter and olive oil until golden and with slightly crispy edges. The sole was naped with lemon juice used to deglaze the pan, with a little more butter swirled into this. It was heaven to the palate.

And this is how the petrale sole doré ($19.95) tasted Saturday evening at Joe Rombi's La Mia Cucina restaurant in Pacific Grove.

Two fish filets were served over a very small amount of orzo pasta (pasta in the shape of barley grains), which had been cooked and mixed with onions sautéed in butter, accompanied by a little pesto and grated cheese. It was the best fish accompaniment we have ever had.

Faithful readers will know that Morgan does not like huge portions of rice served with fish, and has somewhat denigrated the newish fad of serving beans with fish. Morgan has come out peevishly, we admit, for just a boiled, parsleyed potato or two with fish, but even this pristine, traditional accompaniment pales beside pesto orzo.

Ingenious

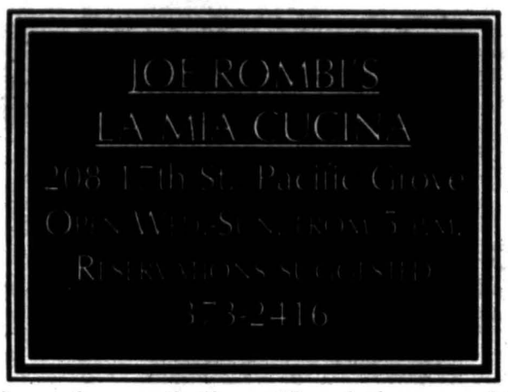
Joe Rombi has impeccable taste, and his selection and serving size of the pesto orzo is nothing short of genius. The doré and pesto flavors complement each other perfectly. A small branch of steamed broccoli came with this superlative dish.

We almost opted for the last portion of fettucine al vongole that the kitchen was saving for just the right patron (one who adored pasta in clam sauce), but the recollection of our long ago Venetian experience prompted us to make a last minute switch.

Our waiter, young Keegan (who was a busser until only a short while ago), was graciousness personified and told us it was no trouble at all to change our choice of entrée.

All entrées at Rombi's ($16.95 - $21.95) are served with a house salad (red and green leaf lettuce, green onions, tomato and corn kernels with an outstanding blue cheese vinaigrette) and a house soup. But as we had ordered the crab cake ($8.95) as an appetizer, declined the soup, which, we learned later, was a superb puréed zucchini with no cream; we asked that the salad be served with the entrée.

There are nine pastas on the menu ($15.95 - $17.95), all of which come with the house salad, and there are two pastas that have their own special designated day: On Friday, Rombi's meat lasagna ($16.95) is served, and on Sundays, spaghetti and meatballs ($15.95) reign supreme.



Restaurateur with a past

Be sure to make a reservation for this Sunday special, Joe Rombi warns. This is a favorite with locals, who fill every table at both seatings. It's Joe's mother's recipe. Angela was a Rappa from Isola de Femina. His father was Genovese, and it was Joe's maternal grandfather who started Rappa's Seafood Restaurant at the end of Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey (now run by his uncle Anthony) and where Joe received very early training in the business. "I worked there from the time I was 11 until I was fired at the age of 17 for being a jokester," he said. Before opening Rombi's in Pacific Grove, formerly Bertolucci's, he had a restaurant from 1977 - 1990 on Cannery Row called The Old Row Cafe. This is where he met Laurie, his wife, who was a waitress there.

Laurie Rombi is the garde manger, the pantry chef who prepares all the soups and salads, dressings, Italian rice balls called arancini ($8.95) and crab cakes which are served as appetizers, and most of the desserts at Rombi's. "Laurie is a very big part of our restaurant," Joe said. The only desserts she doesn't make are the spumoni and the tartuffo, which come from Gelato Paradiso Maximo of Castroville. All desserts are $6.95.

Rombi's signature dish is ravioli: spinach and meat ravioli ($16.95) and ricotta cheese ravioli ($15.95). They make their own fresh pasta at Rombi's with the exception of the penne, which is commercial pastasciutta by De Cecco. Joe Rombi uses De Cecco for the same reason Marcella Hazan does. She told Morgan years ago she uses De Cecco pasta because it stays al dente when cooked.

The one pasta you won't find on the menu is spaghetti (except on Sundays), but Joe Rombi said patrons can ask for spaghetti any night. And if you want a half order of pasta as a course before the entrée, they will do

Artists, celebrities produce masks for the benefit of VNA, Hospice

WE ALL must wear many masks throughout life, but few are as extravagantly designed as those made for the VNA and Hospice Mask 2002 Project.

Celebrities and artists have given of their time to create porcelain hand-painted masks to raise funds in support of VNA and Hospice.

The Howard Behrens Studio in Monterey will host the collection of celebrity masks from Feb. 1 through 11. All proceeds from the sale of the masks will benefit Sutter VNA and Hospice, which provides low and no-cost care for terminally ill patients and their families. A reception is planned for 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 2 at the Howard Behrens Studio Gallery, located at 400 Cannery Row, Monterey.

Carmel resident Billie DiMonaco, chairman of the Carmel Youth Art Show and executive director of the Howard Behrens Studio, was impressed by a small group of volunteers who made the Mask Project possible. She alerted Behrens to its efforts, and he created a mask that sold for $2,500 at last year's benefit.

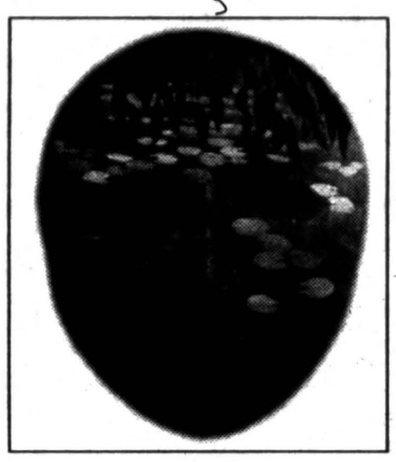
This year Behrens' offering is "Gentle Passing — Reflections on Giverny," a work of art evocative of the artist's sentiment, "I wish every person could die peacefully — to just float away softly and gently like the lily pads in Giverny. Hospice makes that possible."

Singing star Bonnie Raitt created a mask ablaze with stars and hearts. She inscribed it, "Make me an angel that flies from Monterey."

Sports star Barry Bonds autographed his contribution, a mask that has star gazing eyes with three red teardrops called "Reaching for the Stars."

Football hero Jerry Rice's contribution is a mask with S.F. and 80 on a red backgrounds with Rice's signature as a prominent endorsement.

For more information about the Mask Project, contact the Howard Behrens Studio Gallery at 658-3890.



Howard Behrens' contribution to the mask benefit is this one called "Gentle Passing — Reflections on Giverny."

that, too. "You have only to ask," Rombi said.

We love this restaurant! No wonder they have a huge local following.

"We love our business," Rombi told Morgan. When asked to describe the Italian cuisine at the restaurant, Rombi said, "La Mia Cucina doesn't have any particular regional influence," he said. "I learned from my mother, from my travels throughout Europe. It's Italian food as I know it. It's simple. The best foods are simple."

Amen.

Murder, mayhem, madness prevail in Rocky Point anthology

"ROCKY POINT Murders" — Even the title is chilling, and the cover illustration, a photograph by Catherine Lise Miller of our coastline as seen through the branches of a dark forest, creeps one out.

This book of 10 eerie stories, all centered about Big Sur's Rocky Point and Rocky Point Restaurant, is an anthology of short stories involving, as the cover tells us, "Murder, Mayhem and Madness," all written by a local writers group known as The Carmel Writers Workshop. Some of the authors write under their own names, others use noms de plume.

The book is dedicated to Maxine Shore, a Carmel writer and writing workshop teacher to whom many a local author owes a debt of gratitude for profound guidance and encouragement through their first published works. Maxine died a few years ago, and her memorial service, held in Carpenter Hall, drew scores of grateful students, some quite elderly, who had blossomed under her tutelage.

Some of the Carmel Writers Workshop group met in recent years at the Cambria Writers Conference held annually at Asilomar and have been meeting regularly under the CWW aegis ever since. The by-lines shown on the stories are Roger Henwedge, Greta Kopp, McKenzie Moss, Joan Drummond Miller, W. B. Daniels, Maggie Hardy, Neil Hunter, Mary Clarkson, Laura Pasten and Will Peters. We must leave it to our readers to determine which of these are pen names. Our lips are sealed.

Two of the writers own an interest in Rocky Point restaurant, just down the coast, and the idea of having a collection of short stories focused on that locale was their idea.

Having that focus provided each of the writers with a jumping off point for their stories, if one may be allowed an unintentional pun, as one of the stories finds a corpse on the rocks below Rocky Point.

The foreword is a fictional intro ostensibly written by a member of the Rocky Point Historical Society (there is no such group), who informs the reader that the stories document how "for nearly two centuries, Rocky Point has drawn twisted, vengeful and homicidal souls to its unique beauty." The society's spokesperson deals with the "sinister mystique" of Rocky Point and the anthropological history of the area which engendered much homicidal violence over the centuries.

So far, the writers have had two booksignings, one at Rocky Point Restaurant and one at the Thunderbird, and will appear as a group at a booksigning at the Book Faire here in March, sponsored by the Independent Booksellers. More of that later.

The 148-page trade paperback was edited by Walter Randall Albers and is published by Noir Press of San Francisco but printed in Kansas. It retails for $12.95. Each short story is preceded by black and white grainy photographs of beaches, bolted doors, dark, coastal forests, and rocky outcroppings afoam with ominous surf — all by Heidi McGurrin. It's available at most local book stores.

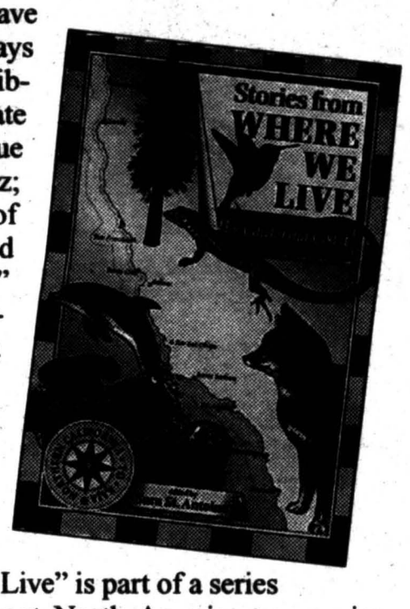
"STORIES FROM Where We Live — The California Coast" edited by Sara St. Antoine, is another splendid book by Milkweed Editions of Minneapolis. We know California is different, but it's nice to have it spelled out for us in essays on, for instance, fog, in a tribute to the misty Golden Gate area; sea otters in the blue coastal waters of Santa Cruz; a young girl's discovery of the La Brea tar pits; and Catalina's "pigeon express" — the unusual airmail service run from the Catalina Islands in the late 1800s. There is a story of a woman stagecoach driver who dressed as a man and kept up the charade until she died.



"Stories from Where We Live" is part of a series that focuses on each different North American ecoregion, offering stories, poems, journal entries, essays and oral histories of each region. Designed for kids (ages 9 and up) and their families, the books also serve as travel books.

Editor St. Antoine said that the stories found in each of the series' books "help us recall the history of our communities and see the ways they have changed over time. In many cases, they inspire us to become caretakers of all that is wild and wonderful in our home communities."

The hardcover, colorfully jacketed book with maps and illustrations is available for $19.95 from Milkweed Editions, 1011 Washington Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55415 (1-800-520-6455). Milkweed's website is www.milkweed.org.

LESLIE TRYON, author and illustrator of 12 children's books, including her well-known "Albert the Duck" series, will speak at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 5 at The Thunderbird bookshop at the Barnyard shopping village, Carmel, on "Publishing and Illustrating Children's Books: Then & Now." This is a great chance for writers to keep abreast of publishing needs and trends. Free. For information, call 624-1803.

TWO POETS, Jennifer Lagier and Jessamay Howell, will read from their works at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8 at the Thunderbird Bookshop, Carmel. The reading is presented by the National Writers Union, and admission is $5.

LINDA BREEN Pierce, Carmel author of "Choosing Simplicity: Real People Finding Peace and Fulfillment in a Complex World," will conduct a seminar from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 9 at the Thunderbird Bookshop & Cafe at the Barnyard in Carmel. Cost of the seminar is $10. Breen will discuss the benefits of living more simply and provide an introduction to simplicity discussion groups. Seminar participants will have the option to sign up for new simplicity discussion groups in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties. For information, contact Pierce at 626-8486 or on the web at pierce@gallagherpress.com.

JANE SMILEY, Pulitzer Prize winning author, will speak at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 2 at the Carmel Valley library, reading from her novel, "Horse Heaven," and from an upcoming book, "Biography of Charles Dickens" which will be released in May. Smiley, who has lived in Carmel Valley since 1996, won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction for her novel, "A Thousand Acres," a tale that weaves the King Lear story through the life of an Iowa farm woman. This is the first in the library's First Saturday Series.

For information, call Desiree Gillingham at 659-4055 or the Carmel Valley Library at 650-2377. The library is located at 65 W. Carmel Valley Road, just west of Carmel Valley Village.

Susan Giacometti solos at CAA; Lindberg, Farrington and Raybould oils also showcased in Segal Room

SUSAN GIACOMETTI, an art teacher at York School, likes to capture what she terms "small moments — when the light or the gesture or arrangement of objects is just right."

A one-person show of Giacometti's "Moments" will run from Feb. 6 through March 5 at the Carmel Art Association, with an opening reception for the artist set for 6 to 8 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 9.

While Giacometti primarily is a printmaker specializing in relief methods, she is a painter and etcher whose recent collection of etchings exhibited at the Alvarado Street Gallery in Monterey was purchased by the City of Monterey. The suite of etchings depicts Cannery Row in its heyday.

A reception for three other artists whose work will be showcased during the same time slot will be held in conjunction with Giacometti's reception: Keith Lindberg, Reed Farrington and Barry John Raybould, all oil painters, will have their work featured in the Gallery Showcase in the Segal Room.

Farrington's work will depict the water's edge of the Mexican coast; Lindberg's paintings will be of California landscapes; and Raybould will exhibit plein air landscapes.

The CAA is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth avenues and is open daily from 10 a.m . to 5 p.m. For information, call 624-6176 or visit the CAA website at www.carmelart.org.

MILESTONES

VIRGINIA J. CATLIN, 91, a homemaker and Carmel resident for 60 years, died Jan. 23 at Hospice House.

A native of Lourdes, Nova Scotia, Canada, she is survived by a sister, Jean Adams of Texas; nephew Ian Scott McKean of Texas; and her companion, Howard Waner of Monterey.

Memorials are suggested to the Hospice Foundation for the Central Coast.

KENNETH L. McENROE, 73, an aviation enthusiast who flew both power planes and gliders, died Jan. 26 at his Carmel home.

Born in San Francisco, he attended schools in Oakland and graduated from UC Berkeley as a physicist.

Mr. McEnroe worked at the Cyclotron in Berkeley and the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and later taught math and physics at Oakland City College.

While serving in the U.S. Army during the Korean War, he participated in the testing of the first military rockets at the White Sands Proving Grounds in New Mexico.

He is survived by his wife, Kathleen McEnroe of Carmel, his son, Paul McEnroe of Carmel and two grandsons.

River School spellers 'encouraged' to fight for top honors

CARMEL RIVER School's two best spellers — fifth graders Justin Fernandez (center left) and Joseph Gonzalez (center right) — will compete against fourth and fifth graders from 21 public and private schools throughout the Peninsula at Lyceum of Monterey County's 18th Annual Spelling Bee Feb. 9. Joseph won his spot by spelling "encouraged" and Justin by spelling "attention," according to River School Principal Sharron Douglas. Alternates Caelan Urquhart (left) and Lei Lee (right) will step in if needed.

"They stayed up there forever," Douglas said of Fernandez and Gonzalez. "They were really good spellers."

The spelling bee will take place at 10 a.m. Feb. 9 at Colton Middle School in Monterey. For more information, contact the Lyceum at 372-6098.

VOTERS

again update its count of registered voters in the next few weeks. Citizens can still register to vote until March 25 — 15 days before the April 9 election.

"A lot can change in that length of time," Davidsen said. "That's almost two months away. In order to do an accurate comparison we have to compare apples to apples and we haven't reached the cut-off date yet."

Two years ago, Sue McCloud was elected mayor with 881 votes; Ken White got 845. This year, the totals may be even lower.

Carmel City Clerk Karen Crouch said she is concerned about the loss of registered voters. "I may have to come up with some kind of incentive program to encourage people to register [to vote] because that's their right," Crouch said.

Keeping better track

Carmel's loss of registered voters doesn't come as a big surprise considering that the 2000 Census showed the population had decreased by 158 residents during the last 10 years. The population loss has been attributed to the city's aging demographic — meaning few families have children — and the increasing number of homes in the city owned by out-of-towners. Under state law, owners of second homes can vote in Carmel by declaring their homes in the village to be their "domiciles," but many choose not to.

"I'll have to look at the numbers but my suspicion is that the population decline has been the primary factor," said county registrar of voters Tony Anchundo. "If the numbers aren't there, they aren't there."

In addition, Anchundo said, his office has implemented an aggressive new file maintenance program during the last four years to keep the voter rolls as up to date as possible.

Recently adopted California statues allow the county registrar to purge individuals who have not voted in a general election during the last four years from the voter rolls, Anchundo said.

In addition, Anchundo's office sends out routine mailings to voters to determine if they've moved out of the area. And the county registrar is able to tap into a statewide voter file and DMV records to find out if someone is living elsewhere.

"Prior to the statute that allowed us to take advantage of non-voter participation, the only notification we had was from the post office," Anchundo said.

Voter registration forms are available at the Carmel post office, Carmel City Hall and Harrison Memorial Library.

"We'd better start encouraging people to register right now," Crouch said.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ANN M. DE JESUS in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ANN M. DE JESUS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on February 8, 2002 at 10:30 a.m., Dept.: Probate, in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Designation of tiny Carmel Mission paves way for restoration of Carmel's first schoolhouse

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL'S FIRST private schoolhouse on Vizcaino — which has been considerably altered and added onto over the years — is likely to return to the way it looked back when Emma Williams taught children there in 1907.

Owner Bill Wilson's plan to restore the schoolhouse to its original condition while taking advantage of some historic preservation incentives for a new home he wants to build on the property found favor with the city's historic preservation committee Jan. 28.

The whole plan hinges on the historic designation of a tiny cement replica of the Carmel Mission which also sits on the property. The model of the mission is believed to have been built in 1912 by William's students, including M.J. Murphy's son, Thomas.

Wilson had originally wanted to designate the schoolhouse itself, but the city decided the structure didn't qualify for such an honor because so much of the original building was lost.

So Wilson and his architect, Jim McCord, came up with the idea of designating the mission model — which will still allow them to take advantage of some exceptions to the zoning code for the new house they want to build.

During the Jan. 28 meeting, committee members needed some convincing that designating the model of the mission would be beneficial to Carmel. Member Kathryn Gualtieri wondered if it might be better to move the tiny replica to a place where it would have a better chance of being seen by the public.

Council candidate Jim Wright, who attended the meeting, was concerned about granting exceptions to the zoning code. "You may be approaching a dangerous precedent if you don't require that [public] benefits be more directly connected to a project," Wright said.

But Wilson argued that "the city would greatly benefit to have the schoolhouse taken back to its original size and structure."

Acting planning director Chip Rerig urged the commission to approve the designation.

"We continue to talk about the cumulative loss in the city — the loss of cottages that are potentially historic and the loss of character," Rerig said. "Let's move forward. We have to look at the little steps we can make toward preservation. This may not be possible in the future."

Ultimately the committee agreed and voted 4-0 to designate the model of the mission. Member Paul Brocchini stepped down because of a professional affiliation with Wilson.

Member Julie Wendt looked on the designation and reconstruction as a win-win project. "If we can associate the designation with the reconstruction of a schoolhouse the public can see, to me that sounds pretty good," she said. "That's a fair trade."

Gualtieri agreed. "There is no other place in Carmel where there is an example of a small one-room schoolhouse," she said.

Wilson told the committee he plans to remove the fence that currently blocks the view of the schoolhouse from the street and will put up a plaque explaining the significance of the schoolhouse and the mission model.

The schoolhouse will be downsized to the original 400-square-foot configuration of the original building and the aluminum windows currently on the building will be replaced with wood windows similar to those used in the original building.

In addition, "we will change the front porch, which has a gable, to a shed roof so that the front elevation totally emulates the original schoolhouse," Wilson said.

Pending approval of the Carmel Planning Commission, the designation of the mission model will allow Wilson to receive some exceptions to the zoning code, including exceeding the maximum ridge height limit and the minimum front yard setback.

In addition, he is applying to exclude the schoolhouse's' volume from the overall volume calculation.

OPINION

Editorial

The resurrection of 4th Avenue

IF YOU'RE walking over to Pebble Beach for the AT&T Pro-Am this weekend, be sure to use Fourth Avenue as your route to the Carmel gate.

This street was formerly a gloomy, tunnel-like thoroughfare that snaked its way downhill beneath an impenetrable canopy of eucalyptus leaves — piles of which were always rotting on the ground.

We understand that the eucalyptus is the preferred habitat for koala bears. That's just fine, because koala bears live in Australia, where the tree originated. But Carmel is in California, and here the eucalyptus is an alien invader that poisons the soil, blocks out the sun and occasionally drops a 1,000-pound branch on unsuspecting creatures below. During winter storms, a colossal specimen or two will sometimes topple over onto someone's house . . . or head.

The row of trees along Fourth was planted late in the 19th Century for primitive medicinal purposes. Millions of other eucalyptus became established in California based upon a wrong-headed belief that the tree would be a good source of cheap lumber (sorry, it warps and cracks too much). Despite the fact that the eucalyptus has "naturalized" all over the state, driving out native species as it gobbles up more territory, the trees still have defenders — mainly, people who can't stand to see any tree cut down for any reason.

But thanks to the wisdom and courage of city officials, Carmel-by-the-Sea made the decision last year to remove every last eucalyptus on Fourth Avenue. The $104,000 job is more than half finished, and the results are glorious. Where gloom once reigned and smelly seeds rained, sunlight now predominates. Heretofore hidden Monterey cypress decorate the roadside, with regal Monterey pines punctuating the blue sky. Where the foreign trees have been cut, the thick carpet of decaying detritus has been removed along with the logs and stumps. Only the power poles — an eyesore in near every neighborhood — mar the scene.

The tree cutting is a great relief for the formerly suffering residents of this particular street. But is also a benefit to the whole town, no less than if a plague of rodents had been eliminated.

It would be nice if state officials would take some inspiration from Carmel and begin a program to rid the state of the eucalyptus. Or, at least to stop its further conquest.

Another view of 'Carmel character'

Dear Editor,

Mr. Tescher in his letter, "Never intended them to stay," of Jan. 25, stated his opinion, but misunderstands what makes Carmel-by-the-Sea character when he states, "In this town character usually refers to houses not people."

He should realize that the character of Carmel-by-the-Sea is primarily based on its residents, both past and present, who have recognized the beauty of Carmel and have developed the village accordingly, respecting and preserving the natural setting while building small, unique homes, constructing narrow streets to coexist with the trees and protecting the forests, parks and the beach. In addition, developing and supporting the arts, helping and caring for neighbors and volunteerism are other Carmel traits which come to mind when describing the character of Carmel. Further, choosing not to have mail delivery, street lights, sidewalks and traffic signals have kept us unique, attracting worldwide attention as well as visitors who express wonder over "Carmel character."

In addition to the film, "The Magnificent Seven," Mr. Tescher might enjoy reading "The Seacoast of Bohemia," "Creating Carmel: the Enduring Vision," or viewing the video "Don't Pave Main Street."

Contrary to his opinion, candidates Livingston, White and Wright make a wonderful team to imbue and perpetuate what Carmel truly represents — an atmosphere of community, civility and caring.

Any-town USA?

Dear Editor,

What's going on here? When we first came to Carmel in 1950 it was a beautiful, sleepy, charming, quiet village. Now all you see is orange mesh and new construction of large homes on every street. The noise pollution is unbearable. How did this happen? The quality of our lives has changed drastically. We loved living here and dread the idea of leaving. The new arrivals, architects and builders motivated by profit have been given a green light to destroy the things that brought us here 50 years ago. There must be a way to put the brakes on these new projects. If not, this town will soon resemble "Any-town, U.S.A." and we will be long gone.

Incorporation with an 'open mind'

Dear Editor,

Your readers may be interested to know that not all (or even most) people at the mouth of the valley are so adamantly opposed to Carmel Valley incorporation as one might think reading the comments of Mr. Sinotte (most recently in your Jan. 18 edition).

As far as I can tell, his opinions are not representative. Most people are quite open-minded about incorporation and want to get all the facts before they make up their minds. Since a formal incorporation drive has not even started yet (it begins with a petition), it would seem to be far too early for most people to have made up their minds. As one of the founders of The Barnyard Shopping Center and the owner of the Thunderbird Bookshop, I am one of many businesspeople at the mouth of the valley who is interested in exploring incorporation further before deciding where I'll stand.

The Carmel Valley Incorporation Steering Committee is an educational body and is not a part of the CVPOA. I sit on the steering committee along with other businesspeople, the Carmel Valley fire chief, the Tularcitos School principal, the chair of the land use advisory committee, representatives from neighborhood associations, a former county supervisor, the former mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea and many other distinguished leaders from all around Carmel Valley. This is hardly a radical bunch aiming to "seize control of Carmel Valley." The full list of steering committee names can be found at www.townofcarmel-valley.org. Log on and decide for yourself just how 'fringe' and 'unrepresentative' these leaders are.

I am also bothered by Mr. Sinotte's disparagement of our friends and neighbors who live near mid-valley or the village. We are one community sharing the same schools, the same roads and the same glorious valley. Lastly, I am not fond of the threatening tone of Mr. Sinotte's remarks. We all can examine the important issue of incorporation calmly, rationally and with an open mind. That way, the right decision – whatever it is – will be made.

homes in any rural center — Carmel Valley, Del Monte Forest or Bradley — should follow this standard. The extent that we can do that would help simplify our regulations, make them easier to implement and create less confusion in the permitting process," she said. "But if we find in follow-up work that Del Monte Forest is so unique that it really dictates a different standard than in Bradley, then we will do something different."

The idea of banning very large houses on parcels spanning many acres doesn't sit well with owners of large parcels and advocates of property rights, who have said the government has no business further limiting the size of a house in the middle of, for example, 30 acres.

DOLLY HYLTON, 16, was kicked by a moose in Montana several years ago, which accounts for her somewhat stiff right leg. It carries a titanium plate.

Dolly the Airedale has no idea why the moose had it in for her. He simply materialized from the woods and gave Dolly an unwarranted boot before disappearing again into the forest primeval while sweet Dolly lay on the ground with a compound fracture. When her leg was put in a cast, Dolly was up and about right away, going everywhere, doing everything. A real trooper.

Twice a day Dolly gets to go for a walk with Mom Bobbie and/or Dad Bob who offer Dolly a choice of either Carmel Beach or Mission Trail. On the beach, Dolly has innumerable friends whom she greets happily, and who respond with a cheerful "Hello, Dolly!" as you probably already guessed.

Dolly is also a heroine. She saved dad from a rogue wave on Carmel Beach. Heading up one of the beach stairways after a good romp, Dolly preceded Dad, who held her leash. From out of nowhere, a wave crashed over Dad Bob who instinctively braked Dolly's lead. As Dad was trying to figure out which end was up, the wave began to recede, pulling Dad with it. Dolly stood her ground, allowing Dad to regain his foothold and pull himself up the steps to safety.

All join in the chorus of praise to 112-year-old Dolly: it's so nice to have you here where you belong!

House Talk

By Paul & Nellie Brocchini

YOU MAY recall from our previous reports that the local real estate bull market began in the fourth quarter of 1995. The first nine months of that year were weak, and then, unexpectedly, the market began to pick up in the last quarter. We were both working on deals Christmas Eve wondering why our clients were choosing such a weird time to buy real estate.

The bull market that began that year had a long run. But to keep good times — and bad — in perspective, let's look at the progression of median sales prices over 10 years. This will give us a good idea of how the market has behaved over a long period. We will use Carmel for our example: In 1992 the median sales price in Carmel was $440,000. In 1993 it dipped to $427,000, and in 1994 it made a comeback to $450,000. In 1995 it slipped downward again to $429,000. Basically, prices did not go anywhere from the end of the 1989-1990 run-up to 1995.

The 1996 market was excellent but prices didn't change much. At that time we commented on their surprising stability. Demand was becoming stronger and stronger so why wasn't it having a greater impact on price? The 1996 median sales price came in at $480,000, 12 percent above 1995 but only 7 percent above 1994. This was a move up but nothing dramatic.

Subsequently, the median sales price in 1997 topped 1996 by 9 percent. In 1998 prices again gained 9 percent; in 1999, 15 percent; in 2000, 38 percent. Look at those last two numbers: 53 percent appreciation in two years. Those were clearly unsustainable numbers.

Carmel — up 93 percent in 10 years

Looking at quarterly numbers, which are suspect because the time frame is too short and the data too meager, Carmel hit its price peak in the second quarter of 2001 with a median sales price $1,150,000 for the quarter. We published that figure in our 2nd Quarter Report, but we didn't draw any conclusions.

If one uses the $1,150,000 median sales price as a benchmark, the 2001 median sales price of $850,000 seems like a devastating drop. Some local reporting has focused on these short-term differentials and included some truly alarming numbers. Readers need to be skeptical of short-term numbers and not jump to conclusions on the hot news just off the press.

With 10 years of numbers, which we just have given for Carmel, one can see exactly where we are. 2001 was 6 percent below 2000 but 31 percent above 1999. The gain from 1992 to 2001 was 93 percent. Only 29 percent of that gain was achieved from 1992 to 1998 and all of the rest has come since 1999. 1999 and 2000 were exceptional boom years.

The psychology of the up real estate market

Few of us are immune to the psychology of the moment. It is hard not to be bullish when multiple offers are flying around and properties are selling for more than the asking price. Similarly, it is hard to recognize good deals when our fists are squeezing to death the dollars in our pockets. Sometimes it pays to be counterintuitive.

As we reported last week, the flow of real estate dollars into our market in 2001 dropped by $437 million. That is a lot of money. Yet, at the beginning of the year, median asking prices were approaching $500,000 above record-high median selling prices. How could anyone believe that 35 percent annual gains could continue?

What happens in up markets is simple. Prices go up, up and up and sellers and their agents fear under-pricing their product. So they keep ratcheting prices higher and higher. It becomes a stampede that is hard to resist. When the market begins to cool, few realize it in time to catch the best possible price when they go on the market. Asking prices stay high, sales volume begins to dwindle, savvy or truly motivated sellers lower their expectations and get their places sold. Others don't get the picture and stay behind the downward curve. It is terrible, if you are a seller, to chase the downward curve. Often times sellers end up getting substantially less than they would have gotten had they had an attractive price in the beginning.

The silver lining here is that even those who have been chasing the downward price curve have only taken a beating off the peak highs. At this writing, people selling today in Carmel are only 6 percent off 2000 prices and still a whopping 31 percent above those of 1999.

POLICE LOG

purse in the Crossroads parking lot on 01/20/02 at about noon.

Carmel area: Report of a residential burglary on Yankee Point Drive. Home electronic equipment was stolen.

Carmel area: Hacienda Carmel resident found what he thought were suspicious scratches on the lower portion of the passenger door of his car.

Carmel Valley: Farm manager reported the theft of two weed trimmers and an air compressor from a storage building.

Carmel area: Quail Lodge front officer manager reported two guests left without paying their room tab.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 22

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Located a Toyota station wagon parked at San Carlos and 13th with the rear hatch open. Located owner at residence across the street. Owner of the vehicle advised the vehicle was left in an unsecured condition to allow for property to be moved from the residence to the vehicle with ease.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Welfare check requested on a 91-year-old 11th Avenue resident who lives alone. He did not answer the door.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man stated that he was in the process of placing a construction barricade in front of a doorway at Dolores and Ocean when a male subject was walking by and became argumentative toward him. Man thought he had been drinking. Subject kicked the barricade, causing it to collapse, and then walked away. Area check made, UTL (unable to locate).

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man reported that approximately three years ago he wrote a deposit check for a stay at an inn in Carmel, and then paid for his stay with cash. He believed the deposit check would be destroyed by the desk clerk. Approximately three or four weeks ago, the check was deposited. Inn records indicate the deposit was applied to his stay. Advised to find the cash receipt to prove his claim. Advised the matter was civil.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Contacted a subject and warned him for parking in the Vista Lobos lot after 2330 hours and sleeping in his vehicle. He was provided information where camping was allowed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Observed vehicle unoccupied with the lights on. Checked area and found driver in the Devendorf restroom. He was using the facilities and left his vehicle unoccupied with lights on and unsecured. No problems.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ten citations for speeding and other vehicle code violations issued at Rio and Ladera and at Carpenter and Second between 0934 and 1202 hours.

Carmel area: Highway 1 resident reported an unknown person entered her neighbor's house when no one was supposed to be home. The person was an electrician who had permission to be at the residence.

Carmel area: Resident reported his wife was having possible suicidal thoughts. She committed herself to Garden Pavilion at CHOMP.

Carmel area: Camino Real resident reported the theft of a tape recorder and binoculars.

Carmel Valley: Victim turned utility cart in front of a parked forklift on Rancho San Carlos Road and nearly severed his left foot against the fork. He was transported by AMR to CHOMP.

Carmel Valley: Carmel Valley Road resident reported his and his two neighbors' mailboxes vandalized over the last three nights.

Carmel Valley: Elderly female Miramonte Road resident requested assistance in removing a male caretaker from her property after she imagined he had stolen from her.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Close patrol while a bartender closed for the evening.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Pine Terrace resident reported she is currently involved in litigation with the homeowners association regarding a light fixture she recently installed over her parking space. Association president advised her she was not allowed to install the fixture and threatened to tear it down. Fixture was torn down, leaving exposed wires over her parking space. She explained the threat and requested contact be made. Not home. Message left for subject to contact CPD regarding the complaint.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Citizen turned in a Lexus key at Scenic and Ocean. Checked several Lexus vehicles in the area and found the owner of a Lexus at Scenic and 13th and turned the key over to her. She was very grateful since she was in the process of notifying AAA.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Seventh Avenue business owner reported soap film splashed on the front and side display during the night. He said this is the fourth incident in the last year and believes it is the work of a disgruntled buyer who wanted to purchase the business. Windows of a nearby antiques store also splashed. No permanent damage.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a pine limb down at Mission and Fourth. Tile roof and gutter of adjacent building sustained $5,000 in damage.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject who has a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) filed against him called CPD because he wanted the woman arrested for violation of her restraining order against him. Explained that the TRO was specific concerning his instructions to stay 150 yards away from her and by him being at the same meeting and not leaving immediately, he was in violation, not she. He became angry and hung up. Later, an officer from another department advised the subject had apparently tried to call her in violation of the TRO. ATC (attempt to contact) subject was unsuccessful.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from Mission and Fourth for expired registration. While conducting an inventory search of the property in his vehicle, a loaded firearm was found concealed in a leather handbag. Owner cited for carrying a loaded firearm.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported concern about a 90-year-old resident and a subject she met at the Carmel Foundation. Contacted resident and she seemed to be in good health and said she did not need any assistance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Contacted a Pine Terrace resident regarding a civil dispute. He admitted he tore down a light fixture in the parking garage, acknowledged his actions were wrong and said he did it out of frustration. He allowed for the electrician to return to put the light back over her parking space. He agreed not to disturb or tear down any electrical equipment without seeking approval first. Information provided to victim.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Scenic resident reported someone trespassed onto her property and cut in half a large pine tree near her front door. She did not know who committed the act of vandalism to her tree but believes her neighbor directly above her residence is responsible. Went by that residence but no one was home.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Clerk at San Carlos gas station reported a suspicious occupied vehicle in the parking lot with its music playing loudly. Vehicle began to leave as officers arrived. Vehicle stopped and driver stated he was waiting for a friend who lives in the area. He was advised he did not have business on the private parking lot and was told to wait on the street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Observed numerous vehicles parked illegally in the center island of Junipero and Third at 2235 hours. Contacted resident having a party. Owners of vehicles were located and they moved their vehicles to legal spaces. Resident requested officers return to his residence at 0030 hours in order to assist him in ending the party. Later returned and assisted in removing unwanted guests. No problems.

Carmel area: Woman reported an unknown suspect entered her unlocked vehicle parked in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center and stole $920 in compact discs.

Carmel Valley: Carmel Valley business owner reported someone stole one of his backhoe buckets from a Carmel Valley Road jobsite.

Carmel Valley: Subject turned in found property.

Carmel area: Viejo Road resident spotted a suspicious vehicle parked in a neighbor's driveway. Due to a number of recent residential burglaries in the area, the resident copied down the license plate number and telephoned the sheriff's department. The vehicle could not be located however the residents on were contacted. There were no break-ins at either house.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 26

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject arrested at Rio and Ladera for public intoxication.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Torres resident reported hearing noises in his roof. Roof and exterior checked and nothing unusual was noted. He had been drinking and was advised that his excessive use of alcohol was making him delusional and paranoid. Still inebriated, he later called and reported he observed a subject in the bushes. Upon arrival no one was present. He was advised of this.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Anonymous report of a subject inside the public library consuming alcoholic beverages. Contact made with subject, who was not consuming alcoholic beverages at the time of contact but admitted having possession of a practically empty bottle with the seal broken. Subject did not display symptoms of intoxication and did not appear in violation of the law. Subject agreed to allow for the disposal of the remaining contents of his bottle and voluntarily left the area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported someone tried to pry off her Carmel resident parking sticker but was unsuccessful.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported a man had been "verbally harassing" her and her husband by saying things and leaving a note on her windshield. Apparently they had dated each other in the past and her husband didn't know about it. She felt he was having trouble letting her go. Advised her the contact did not appear to constitute threats, and to pursue a restraining order if the behavior continues.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Seven citations for various vehicle code violations issued on Rio Road between 1045 and 1212 hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Off-duty police officer reported three male subjects walking toward the police department, one with an open beer. Subjects contacted and warned regarding drinking in public.

Pebble Beach: Assisted CHP at the scene of a car versus semi-truck collision on 17 Mile Drive.

Carmel area: Inspiration Avenue resident reported he and his wife are separated. He claimed she was violating a restraining order and she claimed it was her day to be with the children. Neither had the proper documents.

Carmel Valley: Palisade Drive resident reported he received a phone call from a bank informing him another male was trying to obtain a credit card with his name and Social Security number.

Carmel Valley: Mid-Valley Safeway assistant manager turned in a street sign he retrieved from a juvenile.

Carmel Valley: Calle de los Helechos resident reported she received a threatening call on her cell phone voicemail.

Pebble Beach: Arroyo Drive resident reported a suspect was wandering on his property and vandalized his car.

Pebble Beach: Valdez Road resident reported her brother yelled and swore at her. She then implied he would neglect their elderly mother. Check was done and there was no merit to the allegation of neglect.

EURICH ON REAL ESTATE

A safer, more comfortable home

Walter Eurich

Our homes should be safe and comfortable, no matter what our age is — or how old the house is. These few, simple low-cost modifications can make life easier for everyone.

• Install C-shaped drawer and cabinet handles and lever-type faucet handles and doorknobs. They look good and are easy to use even with wet, soapy hands.

• Use bright lights in high-traffic areas.

• Equip metal lamps with "touch-on" adapters, available at hardware stores. That way there's no groping for switches and no possibility of burns from hot light bulbs.

• Light your stairs from the bottom up — not from the top down — so you don't walk into a pool of darkness. Serious falls usually occur when people go down the stairs, not up. And make sure handrails are sturdily anchored.

• Install lights that turn on automatically at night at your home's entrances. They will help you find your keys and locate the keyhole when you're outside, and when you're inside, you can look out to see who's ringing the bell without showing that you're home by turning on the light. And outdoor lighting discourages burglars.

• Install grab bars and non-slip mats in the tubs and showers.

• Keep a fire-extinguisher handy in the kitchen, where about one-third of household fires start.

• And remember to check your smoke alarms once a month! Why not do it right now?

Sinatra, denied sandwich, slugs Pebble Beach boss

Newspapers delighted with 1960s incident

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE HEADLINES for the 1964 Bing Crosby Clambake were considerably more creative than usual, and not at all about golf.

It was the year Frank Sinatra came to Pebble Beach and attacked the dashing, popular president of Del Monte Properties over a ham sandwich – or, more properly, the absence of one.

The stories describing the late-night incident appeared in newspapers all over the country, with headlines like these:

Alas! Frank Sinatra Breaks Tea Finger

Hungry Sinatra Tries to Fight Way to Kitchen

Frankie Hangs Black Eye on Socialite

All the accompanying articles gave a similar account of the facts: A swaggering, staggering Frank Sinatra – along with his buddy, Dean Martin – approached the night clerk at the Lodge at Pebble Beach at 1 a.m. on Jan. 18 and said, "Want something to eat."

The clerk politely informed the weaving celebrity that the kitchen was closed. This was in the days before mini-bars and 24-hour room service.

Sinatra, whose quick temper and pugilistic tendencies were well known, stood there for a moment and stared down the clerk like a fighter waiting for the opening bell. Then he repeated, "Want something to eat."

The undoubtedly intimidated clerk told Sinatra again that the kitchen was closed.

According to one reporter, at this point Sinatra punched the counter which was between him and the hapless clerk. "Get somebody! Want something to eat," he demanded.

So the clerk phoned Richard Osborne who, as president of Del Monte Properties (he succeeded S.F.B. Morse in PEBBLE BEACH — It wasn't the last putt on the inal green that held the enter of conversation at he Bing Crosby tournanent today.

It was the roundhouse irst blow in the lobby, hrown as battling Frank inatra fought off one of he greatest unchallenges n his career.

He fought Richard Osorne, president of Del Monte Properties and widey known socialite, to a tandstill.

OSBORNE stood still, hat is, and parried with is elbows while the banam singer flailed away vith rights and lefts until e ran out of breath.

It began when Sinatra, accompanied by singer Dean Martin, approached the desk lerk at the Del Monte Lodge about 1 a. m. Saturday and demanded something to eat.

The cupboard was bare, however, and the kitchen closed. But Sinatra still insisted on food.

The clerk called Osborne at home, and the tall, athletically built socialite came over with a peace offering.

It was a bottle of chilled champagne, from his own refrigerator. But Osborne never got to pop the cork.

SINATRA did the popping. His first surprise blow, it was reported, sent Osborne to the floor, the bottle of champagne gurgling forlornly into a corner.

The socialite rose, gamely. And Sinatra, equally game, sailed in with all the rights and lefts at his command.

Until the singer was exhausted, Osborne simply defended himself. He suffered a black eye.

His only comment:

"I'd rather forget the whole thing as soon as possible."

Osborne did, however, confirm the essential details. Sinatra, in the hands of his seconds, wasn't talking.

FRANK SINATRA
Nothing wrong with his swing

Singer/movie star/bon vivant Frank Sinatra came out swinging at Del Monte Properties President Richard Osborne when the Lodge failed deliver "something to eat" at 1 in the morning. Sinatra evidently considered Osborne's proffered bottle of vintage champagne insufficient refreshment during the "scuffle" at the 1964 pro-am.

the job), was indeed somebody!

Sinatra grabbed the phone repeated his drunken demand: "Want something to eat!"

Rather than attempting to communicate again the news that the kitchen was closed, the savvy Osborne decided to take a chilled bottle of fine champagne out of his own refrigerator and deliver it to the crooner personally, with apologies about the lack of food service at one in the morning.

But when Osborne arrived at the lobby of The Lodge, he didn't get half a sentence out before the angry little celebrity cold-cocked him!

"Osborne went down, and the champagne bottle went rolling across the lobby. Osborne got up. Tall (over 6 feet), athletically built, his 180-pound frame kept in top condition by an outdoor life on the Pebble Beach course, he seemed to tower over [the much smaller] Sinatra, who was crouching in a pugilistic stance," a reporter wrote.

"But hand it to Frank for his gameness. He seemed not in the least awed by the unevenness of the match. He kept raining up blows, much of them indirect, many of them landing, somewhere. Osborne kept his own fists to himself and employed only his elbows, defensively, to ward off the blows. This tactic proved very effective, too: Sinatra ran out of breath."

The next day on the golf course, both Frank Sinatra and Richard Osborne sported dark glasses, Sinatra for his celebrity and Osborne for the huge black eye and puffy, bruised cheek where the blows landed.

Although all the columnists complimented Osborne for his restraint, The Daily Transcript wished he had acted less refined:

"Frankly, so to speak, we'd like to have seen Mr. Osborne forget he was a gentleman, and clobber Sinatra over the head with one of those bottles of champagne. Perhaps both. And then mop up the floor with him."

For his part, Osborne never publicly criticized the star for his unprovoked attack. He just shrugged, smiled, and said, "I guess I overestimated Sinatra's sense of humor."

He might have taken a little comfort, though, when he learned through the newspapers that Frankie broke the little finger of his right hand with one of the punches.

"Osborne kept his own fists to himself and employed only his elbows, defensively, to ward off the blows. This tactic proved very effective, too: Sinatra ran out of breath."

Those men behind the wheel

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN CELEBRITIES, professional golfers and their families descended on the Monterey Peninsula for the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament in 1959, impeccable young men from the Monterey Fire Department greeted them and chauffeured them everywhere they wanted to go in bright white, brand-spanking-new Oldsmobile 98 convertibles.

Some of those drivers have long since moved on, but a handful of retired firefighters join MFD's current personnel every year to drive participants in what is now known as the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

'The white Oldsmobile 98 convertibles were beautiful, but it was a bear to stop and put the top down, put the top up, so they stopped that after a few years.'

— Ted Bell

Jack Reynolds, whose father owned the local Oldsmobile dealership in the 1950s, said the car company knew where to find volunteers to drive during the tournament.

"Oldsmobile came to the fire department to see if we would drive the cars," Reynolds said. "They felt if we were in uniform, people back then in the old Crosby days would feel more secure, because there were so many movie stars."

Reynolds recalled driving Bob Hope to and from a home on top of Jacks Peak and providing many rides for Retired Monterey firefighters Ted Bell, left and Jack Reynolds, right, have driven courtesy cars for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am since 1959, when the tournament was still known as the Crosby. They regularly fuel up on coffee and donuts together at Red's in downtown Monterey.

"the Crosby boys" – particularly Larry Crosby, Bing Crosby's brother and event chairman.

Johnny Weissmuller once called for a ride and when Reynolds asked a fellow fireman to give the actor a lift, "he looked at him and said, 'Me Want Jane.' Johnny Weissmuller thought that was pretty funny and of course we gave him a ride," Reynolds said.

While serving as chairman for the first 14 years of the program, the firefighter found himself frantically working every day during the tournament until mid-afternoon, when he would finally unwind.

"I used to be worn out by about 3:30 in the afternoon because it was going like a madhouse – the phone was always ringing, we were getting people in and out throughout the day and then all of them would want to go back at the same time – so I used to take off my uniform jacket, put on a sports coat and go down to the bar at the Lodge to have a couple of refreshments," he said.

"I was driving past the Lodge one day to pick up somebody, and my passenger door opened and in jumped Dean Martin. There was a big crowd and he got in and ducked down in the seat and said, 'Get me out to the 10th Tee as fast as possible!'"

– Ted Bell

Being a gentleman with a lot of discretion, Reynolds declined to describe some of the suspect activities he witnessed at the pub and during many of the celebrity parties he attended.

"I would see some funny things going on down there," he admitted.

The 40 Year Club

Ted Bell is another member of the "40 Year Club" – drivers who have worked the Crosby-turned-AT&T since the early days. The retired firefighter has never missed a year behind the wheel.

Bell recalled pulling up in front of the Lodge during one shift, only to have a celebrity throw open the passenger door, jump in and demand to be driven to Pebble's 10th Tee.

"I was driving past the Lodge one day to pick somebody up, and my passenger door opened and in jumped Dean Martin," he recalled. "There was a big crowd and he got in and ducked down in the seat and said, 'Get me out to the 10th Tee as fast as possible!'"

And singers Gordon and Sheila MacRae serenaded Bell as he drove them from the golf course to the airport at the end of the tournament one year.

"They sang to me all the way out," he said.

The new(er) era

Times have changed, Reynolds and Bell agreed, but the tournament still offers its share of fun and adventure to the courtesy car drivers.

"It's more commercial now," Reynolds said. "Then, it was more party time. It's still fun to drive – you pick up people like Bill Murray and he always makes jokes."

And their passengers still surprise them on occasion.

"About three years ago Orel Hershiser was playing and I picked his wife up a couple of times," said Reynolds.

"My granddaughter wanted his autograph, so I asked Mrs. Hershiser about it and she said, 'I'll see if I can get a baseball card and get it signed,'" he recalled. "Two days later she called for a ride and I just happened to be the person who picked her up. She had the autographed card in her purse."

Reynolds' granddaughter, currently a senior and a softball player at UC Davis, was thrilled, he said.

The drivers no longer wear their fire department uniforms on the job, and the convertibles gave way to four-door sedans long ago, but Oldsmobile persevered as the courtesy car for decades.

"The white Oldsmobile '98 convertibles were beautiful, but it was a bear to stop and put the top down, put the top up, so they stopped that a after a few years," Bell said.

But with the discontinuation of the Oldsmobile line, the courtesy drivers now use Buicks, according to Bell, chairman of the drivers this year.

Between Jan. 29 and Feb. 4 this year, the drivers will put thousands of miles on their cars chauffeuring golfers, their families and other VIPs to the three courses played during the tournament as well as destinations all over the Peninsula.

The total number of courtesy drivers is up to 51, and only a handful of those who first piloted the great white convertibles in 1959 still get behind the wheel of the courtesy cars today: Bell, Reynolds, Ray Crivello, Dick DeLormier and Joe Cerchi. During the tournament, they typically work 12-hour days beginning at 6 a.m.

"The Pro-Am is always fun, even though the days are really long," Reynolds said.

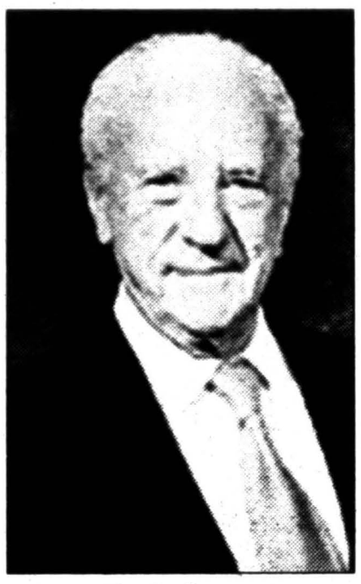
Remembering golf equipment pioneer Ely Callaway

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ELY CALLAWAY – the man whose golf clubs made hitting the "sweet spot" not just a privilege of the pros, but a sensation the average golfer could experience – died July 5, 2001. He was 82.

Many credit the eponymous Mr. Callaway with a revolution in the golf equipment industry and his namesake golf tournament, the Callaway Invitational, is played here every year.



Ely Callaway

Mr. Callaway introduced his first oversized driver, named Big Bertha after a World War I cannon, in 1991, and followed it with the Great Big Bertha, the Biggest Big Bertha and Hawkeye Titanium.

His latest design – the ERC (which stands for Ely Reeves Callaway) – landed him in a fierce fight with the U.S. Golf Association, which banned use of the club in American competition. The club is still sold in the states and allowed in golf competition internationally.

Mr. Callaway introduced his line of oversized irons in 1994, and from 1992 until a sales downturn in 1998, Callaway Golf logged huge sales increases every year and reached nearly $1 billion by the late 1990s.

While best known for Callaway Golf's success, Callaway did not spend a lifetime in golf. Born in LaGrange, Ga. in 1919, he graduated from Emory University in 1940 and served in the U.S. Army through the end of World War II.

By age 24, he had become the Army's sole procurement officer for cotton clothing – a position that helped launch him into his career in the textile industry which ended in 1973 after he left Burlington Industries, where he had been president.

Turning to a small vineyard he had planted in Southern California, Mr. Callaway "developed a wine label so good that Queen Elizabeth caused a stir by drinking two glasses at a bicentennial luncheon in New York," in 1976, according to the Associated Press.

In 1981 he sold the vineyard for $14 million, and purchased a small club-making company – Hickory Stick – in 1982 for $400,000.

Sales were $5 million in 1988. A decade later, they hit $800 million.

Active in his company up until he was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer in April 2001, Mr. Callaway resigned as president and CEO of Callaway Golf the following month. He died in the early morning hours July 5, 2001, in his Rancho Sante Fe home.

Eulogized on the Callaway Golf website, Mr. Callaway solicited heartfelt comments from some of the pros who knew him:

"His energy level was very high, and his intensity in making things happen was unprecedented. Certainly, the golf industry knows that. His marketing expertise and his spirit of taking control was fantastic. I found him most interesting, and a good friend. The fact is, 90 percent of all golfers are struggling to play the game. His whole idea was to give them an opportunity to enjoy the game a little more." – Arnold Palmer

"What he did more than anyone else in this industry is combine technology, business and marketing to build a truly great company in a short period of time. The game of golf, and those who play it, will greatly miss him." – Jack Nicklaus

"To measure the life, work, accomplishments and meaning of Ely Reeves Callaway is as if one would take a thimble and try to empty an ocean." – Vernon Jordan

"One of the greatest perks in joining the Callaway family was being able to get to know and spend some time with the patriarch, Ely Callaway. He was the youngest octogenarian I have ever met. His generosity, compassion, humor, work ethic, street-smart savvy and his general zest for life were qualities that one became aware of within a few minutes of meeting him." – David Leadbetter

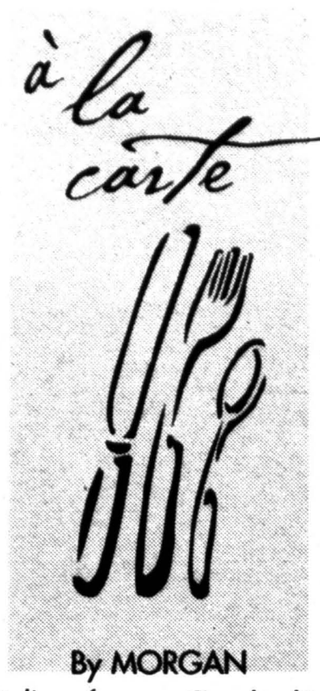
With 302 restaurants to choose from, Morgan bravely selects 30

RESTAURANTS ARE usually crowded during AT&T – with some spectators coming almost as much for the fine dining offered on the Peninsula as for the golfing thrills.

Some restaurants are even booked with corporate reservations, but don't despair, if your favorite seems out-of-reach. Always call to determine if tables have been freed-up. Cancellations often occur, and you'll want to be on that waiting list just in case.

This even applies to the restaurants at Pebble Beach, including Stillwater Grill (625-8524) and Club XIX (625-8519) at The Lodge at Pebble Beach on Seventeen Mile Drive – the Grill is lively and informal, while Club XIX is elegant with French haute cuisine. Roy's (647-7423) and Pèppoli (647-7433), are both at The Inn at Spanish Bay, 2700 Seventeen Mile Drive. Roy's specializes in Euro-Pacific Rim cuisine, while Pèppoli is Tuscan through and through.

There are an abundance of truly fine dining establishments here, and omitting some of the best is tantamount to a culinary crime. Nevertheless, taking into consideration space restraints and human fallibility, we have chosen a few of the ne plus ultra dining spots here that almost always receive raves from diners:



CARMEL

Anton & Michel: Overlooking the Court of the Fountains, this Continental cuisine restaurant is both elegant and romantic. All local produce and sea harvest assure finest quality. Mission and Seventh - 624-2406

La Dolce Vita: Up the steps at Stonehouse Court, inside or terrace seating, you'll find absolutely delightful ambiance for Northern Italian fare. San Carlos & Seventh - 624-3667

Da Giovanni: Take the stairs or elevator in Cortile Dan Remo in the su Vecino passageway to this Mediterranean-cuisine restaurant, decorated with flair. Mission near Sixth - 626-5800

French Poodle Restaurant: On the corner of Junipero at Fifth. Excellent light French cuisine. Elegant. 624-8643

Grasings: Coastal cuisine at Sixth Ave. between Mission and San Carlos is always chock-a-block full with happy local diners. 624-6562

Highlands Inn: Pacific Edge restaurant overlooking the Pacific Ocean, four miles south of Carmel off Highway 1 at 120 Highlands Dr., serves elegantly prepared dinners in sophisticated setting. 620-1234

Kurt's Chop House: On the corner of San Carlos and Fifth, replicates San Francisco chop house atmosphere and beautifully prepared steaks, chops and fish. 625-1199

Loutas: Country French cuisine at Mission and Fourth in a morning-glory covered cottage. Contemporary French country cooking with very special personalized service and background chamber music. 620 -1942

Robert's Bistro: Old world charm at 217 Crossroads Blvd., offers exquisite country French to haute cuisine in delightful European ambiance. 624-9626

PACIFIC GROVE

Fandango: Cuisines of the sun and one of the Peninsula's perennial favorites with charm in its many-roomed dining areas, at 223 17th St. - 372-2476

Old Bath House: Oceanside setting at 620 Ocean View Blvd. Sophisticated, exquisitely-prepared classic cuisine with contemporary touch. Romantic. Impeccable service. 375-5195

Passionfish: Seafood grill and California cuisine at 701 Lighthouse is always packed with locals because the chef/owner is passionate in his food preparation. 655-3311

Rombi's La Mia Cucina - The best of Italian cuisine, absolutely loved by locals. Great ambiance and food at 208 17th - 373-2416

MONTEREY

The Duck Club at the Monterey Plaza Hotel, is comfortably elegant and overlooking the entire Monterey Bay at 400 Cannery Row - 646-1706

Fresh Cream: Overlooking the yacht harbor at 99 Pacific. Classic preparation with au courant know-how. Highly professional in every respect. 375-9798

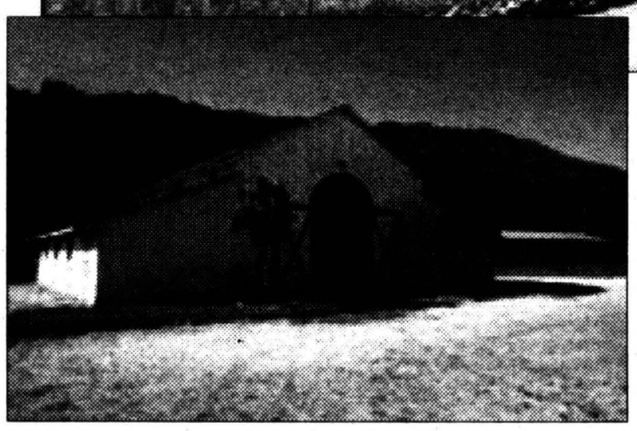
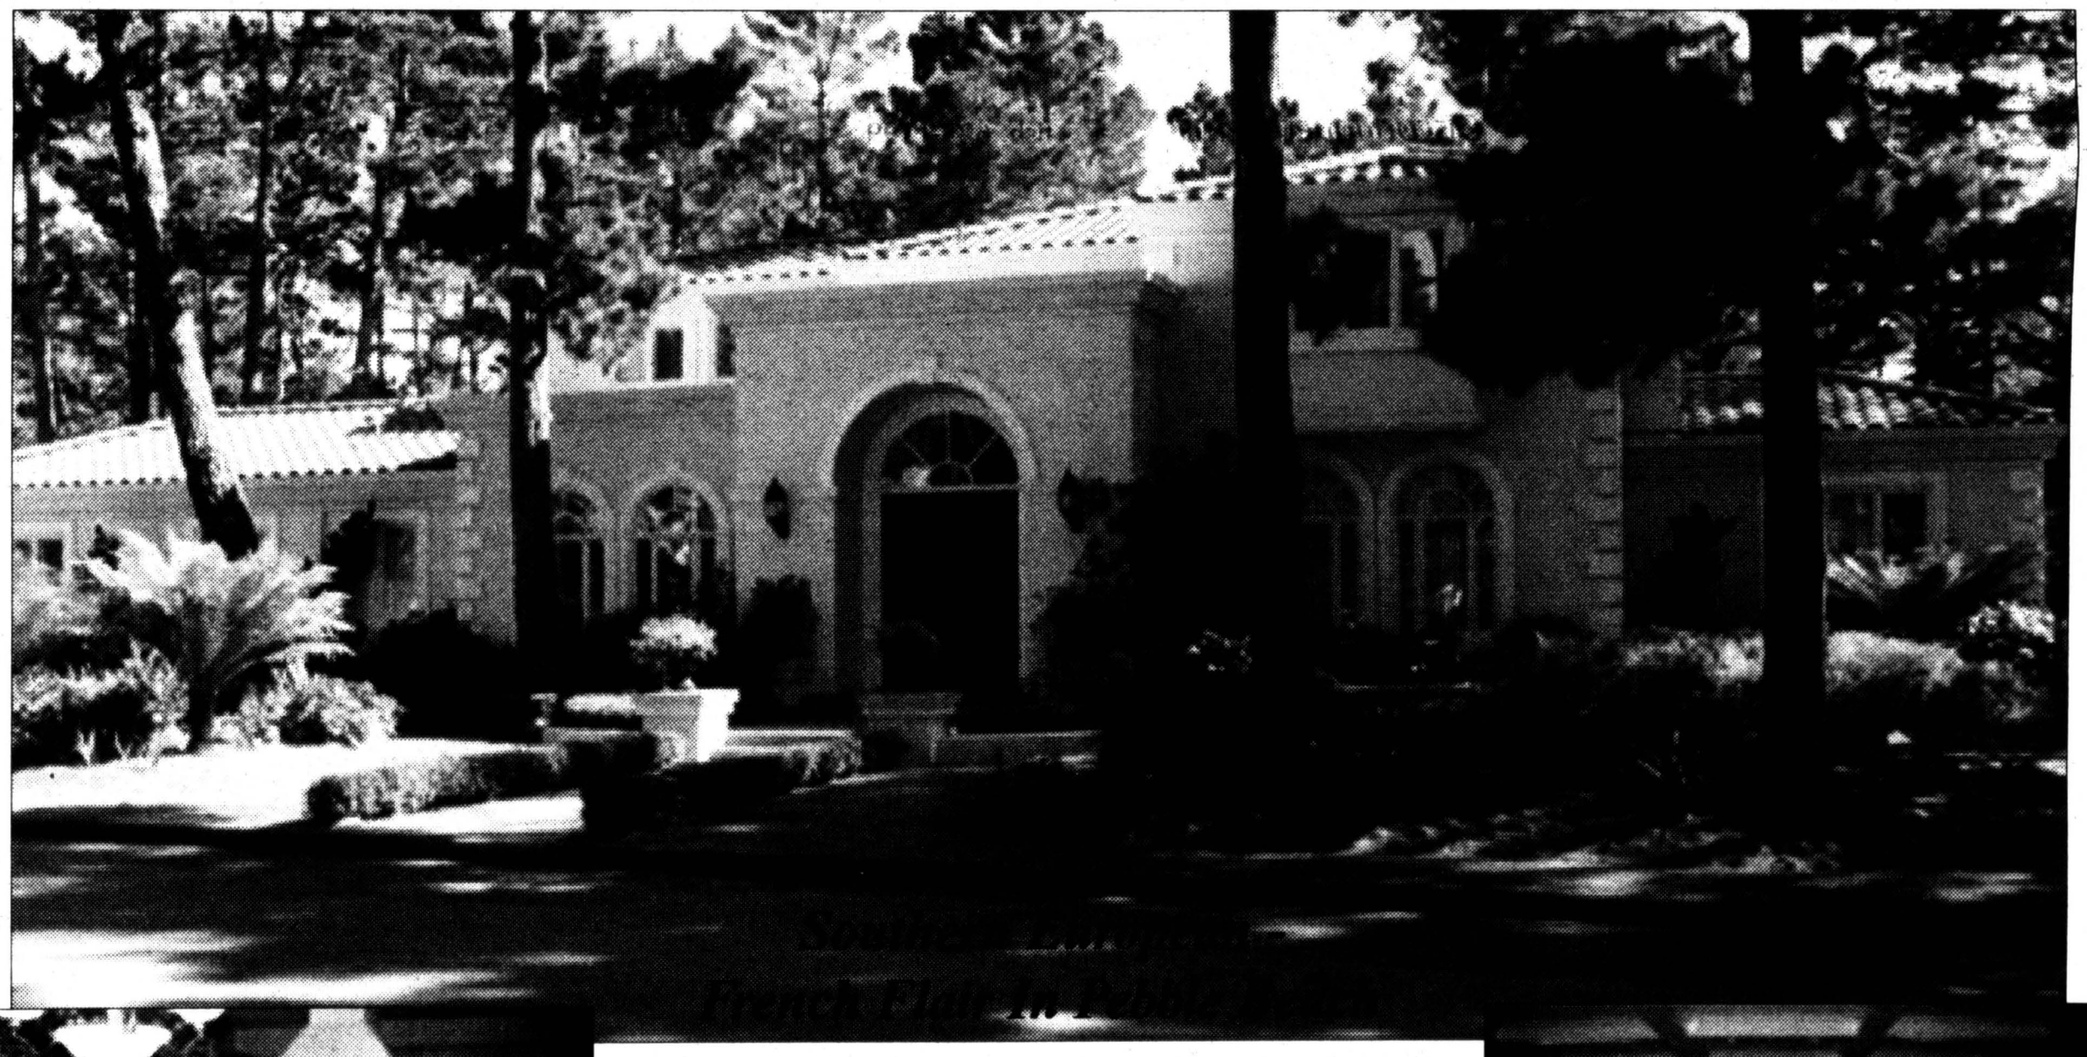
Fairway Farm... Fortune Has Smiled On You!



The most spectacular piece of property in Carmel Valley has just become available for you to build the country estate of your dreams. The long country drive leads to a gated entry that opens to a tranquil, 17+ acres setting with a majestic backdrop. All the necessary ingredients are waiting to be blended, by your special touch, into a perfect combination of sophisticated living in an idyllic country setting. Various buildings and a new well would provide enough water for a stately main residence and guesthouse. The equestrian facilities are unparalleled and include such treats as a newly remodeled barn with 7 Loddon stalls; additional barn with 19 stalls; wash stalls with hot water; tack rooms; 6 turnouts and an all weather ring to name a few. A significant horse facility, a vineyard, access to Garland Park trails, river front property… whatever you have envisioned, this priceless property is your escape from it all. Truly a unique and exciting locale! Offered at $5,000,000



This magnificent custom built home was completed for the current owners in 1992. And, no expense was spared in the design, layout and completion. Upon entering the formal marble entry of this elegant residence, you will be greeted with 4000 square feet of unsurpassed quality and various subtle touches that undeniably make this a property of distinction. Enjoy features such as large paneled windows that let the light filter throughout; artistically designed lighting; radiant heat and a generous master suite with see through fireplace, marble bathroom with sauna, steam shower and huge walk-in closet. With a total of three bedrooms & three and one-half baths, this stylish home also offers formal dining and living rooms; an office; a den/library with fireplace, custom cabinetry and wet bar; security system; a 2-car garage and much more all on a private, meticulously landscaped corner lot. Offered at $2,695,000

MONTEREY PENINSULA

WHILE GOLF fans all over the world revere the Pebble Beach Golf Links as one of the finest courses ever created, few realize the Monterey Peninsula is home to dozens of golf courses suitable for all levels of play and all budgets. Whether you're a scratch golfer looking for a challenge or a novice who just wants to have a good time, there's a golf course just right for you. All yardage figures are calculated from the back tees as cited by the Northern California Golf Association.

Justly famous the world over is the Cypress Point Club's 16th Hole. The tee box is as at the far left, just beyond the small cove. Reaching the green (at center, surrounded by bunkers) requires a shot across the cove. It looks easy but plenty of golfers — distracted by the scenery, perhaps — lose their Titleists in the waves.

Bayonet and Black Horse golf courses, Seaside — Created in Fort Ord's heyday for military use in 1954 and 1963, respectively, these courses now belong to the City of Seaside and have undergone extensive renovation in recent years. Gen. Robert McClure, designer of Bayonet, was known for his left-handed slice and designed the course accordingly, so that the only severe doglegs on the course run right to left. The 7,116-yard par 72 Bayonet and the 7,009-yard par 72 Black Horse — both of which have hosted the PGA's Qualifying School — are open to the public. Call 899-7271 or visit www.bayonetblackhorse.com. Course records include a 65 by Notah Begay on Bayonet and a 64 on Black Horse by Ted Oh.

Carmel Valley Ranch, Carmel Valley — A resort/private club course designed by Pete Dye and built in 1981, Carmel Valley Ranch sits just east of Mid Carmel Valley along the Carmel River and up onto the base of hills nearby. Touted as one of the most modern courses around — its reservations are handled in Scottsdale, Ariz. by Troon Golf and tee times are regularly offered for bid on e-Bay — C.V. Ranch seeks to offer the private country club experience to the public. Pro Bobby Clampett shares the course record of 63 with player Mark Brooks. The 6,234-yard par 70 course can be played by members and resort guests. For more information, call 625-9500 or visit www.cvrgolf.com.

Corral de Tierra Country Club, Salinas — This 6,677-yard par 72 course, situated off the Monterey-Salinas Highway and graced with some of the best weather on the Peninsula, was designed by Bob Baldock in 1960. It was redesigned a few years ago by Michael Poellot, and offers the added challenge of quite a few bunkers. Course open to members and guests. For information, contact the golf shop at 484-1325.

Cypress Point Club, Pebble Beach — Designed in 1928 by renowned course architect Alister MacKenzie, the 6,536-yard par 72 Cypress Point course is known all over the world for its breathtaking par-3 16th Hole over the ocean. Golfer Marion Hollins first conceived of the idea in 1924, and pursued the development of a first-class golf course and a clubhouse with a handful of sleeping rooms for a membership limited to 200 people who would pay about $2,500 each to subscribe (more than 75 years ago). The club is open only to members and their guests. Golf pro Jim Langley holds the course record 63. For information, contact the pro shop at 624-2223.

Del Monte Golf Course — Nicknamed "Old Del Monte" by the locals, the first nine holes of the Del Monte Golf Course were built in 1897, making it the oldest course west of the Mississippi. The course expanded to 18 holes in 1903. It is owned and operated by the Pebble Beach Company. Ken Venturi and Todd Gjesvold share the 62-shot record at this 6,357-yard par 72 public course. For more information, call 373-2700 or visit www.pebble-beach.com.

Laguna Seca Golf Club, Monterey — Robert Trent Jones, Sr. and Robert Trent Jones, Jr. designed this public course off the Monterey-Salinas Highway together in 1970 — their first joint venture. Johnny Miller holds the record 7-under-par 64 on its 6,157-yards, and plans are under way for a new practice facility to open there this spring. For information, call 373-3701 or visit www.lagunasecagolf.com

Links at Spanish Bay, Pebble Beach — A resort course open for public play, the 6,820-yard par 72 Spanish Bay links were jointly designed by Robert Trent Jones, Jr., Tom Watson and former USGA president Sandy Tatum to overlay land once occupied by a sand mine. The project also included extensive rehabilitation of the dunes and native plants in the area. Tom Watson holds the course record 67. For reservations, call (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebble-beach.com, and remember to listen for the bagpiper who occasionally notifies golfers that the day's play is coming to an end.

Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Pebble Beach — The idea of Monterey Peninsula Country Club first arose in 1925 when S.F.B. Morse, James Habbord and Thorwell Mullally decided to combine a golf club with housing. Two courses comprise MPCC: The Dunes course, designed by Seth Raynor in 1926, and redesigned by Rees Jones, and the Shore course, designed by Bob Baldock in 1961. Open only to members and their guests, the Dunes course runs a 6,762-yard par 72 while the Shore course runs a 6,343-yard par 71. Parts of the course suffered substantial damage during the 1998 winter storms and had to be rebuilt. For more information, call the pro shop at 372-8141.

Monterey Pines Golf Course, Monterey — Formerly the U.S. Navy's golf course, the 5,675-yard par 69 Monterey Pines — situated behind the fairgrounds in Monterey — is now open to the public. Robert Muir Graves designed the course in 1963. For more information, call the golf shop at 656-2167.

Pacific Grove Golf Links, Pacific Grove — Affectionately known as the "Poor man's Pebble Beach," P.G. features a truly links-style back nine. Designed by Jack Neville — who also designed Pebble Beach — and H. Chandler Egan in 1932, this 5,732-yard par 70 public course is situated on prime real estate near Asilomar State Beach and surrounds the historic Point Pinos Lighthouse. The ocean scenery is unsurpassed. Sometimes plagued by Canadian geese who enjoy the environs so much they refuse to migrate, the course superintendent hired a trainer and his herding dog to keep the birds off the grass. Call the golf shop at 648-5777 for more information.

Pasadera Country Club, Monterey — One of the newest additions to premier golf courses on the Peninsula, Pasadera opened in 2000. The Jack Nicklaus-designed, 6,751-yard par 71 course is only open to members and their guests on the weekends, but the public can play during the week for $250. One of the course highlights includes an awe-inspiring par 3 over a deep chasm.

With the opening of the new 5th Hole in 1999, the Pebble Beach Golf Links at last fulfilled the vision of its designer as a true shore course. When Pebble Beach was laid out in 1919, the property now occupied by the 5th Hole was a private estate, forcing the 5th hole inland. Decades later, the estate was finally acquired by the Pebble Beach Company and the new hole was finished just in time for the 2000 AT&T Pro-Am.

Want spectacular ocean scenery for just $38 a round? Try the Pacific Grove municipal golf course where the back nine holes — completed in the 1960s — surround the town's historic lighthouse amid rolling sand dunes, wind-gnarled cypress and crashing surf. There's also plenty of wildlife to try not to nail with your tee shot.

Classic Compound in Pebble Beach

Truly one of Pebble Beach's trophy properties! Just a short stroll to the Lodge, this property sits on two legal lots of record at the quiet end of a little known cul-de-sac. In addition to the original Comstock-designed English country four bedroom, four and one-half bath home, there is a separate guest house with two baths, tennis court and pool. $5,800,000

Best New Home in Carmel

"Le Coq" - Just listed, almost finished! Well located, beautifully built and loaded with designer and antique accents, this three bedroom, two bath home is just plain unbelievable! Limestone floors over radiant heat, planked and pegged wood floors upstairs. Two patios, both with southern exposure. You'll love this one! $2,495,000

Best Location in Carmel

An A+ location, south of Ocean Avenue, in A+ condition, extensively and expensively remodeled, an A+ for the clever architecture, with soaring ceilings, skylights, clerestory windows and French doors that bathe the house in light, an A+ for the southern exposure with professionally landscaped grounds. $1,595,000

Carmel Charm Abounds

This Carmel classic was built in the late 20's by M.J. Murphy and lovingly restored by the current owners. There are handhewn beams, soaring ceilings, plaster walls, original hardware, hardwood floors, Carmel stone fireplaces...If there were a museum in which to display the quintessential Carmel home, this would be the masterpiece in it. $1,395,000

Turn-Key in Pebble Beach

Golfers or large families-this one is for you! Offered completely furnished, this spacious two story, five bedroom, four bath home is ready for you to move in today. The home features a living room with fireplace, separate dining room, breakfast bar, den/study, deck with hot tub and a two car garage. $1,250,000

Quail Meadows Lot

Beautiful private oak-studded four-acre lot zoned for equestrian use and bordering a scenic easement. Quail Meadows has it all - the glorious sunshine and country feeling of Carmel Valley - yet it's only 3.5 miles from Carmel. Only a few lots remain, and this one is probably the best! Act now! $2,200,000

Bill & Vicki Mitchell present...

Mediterranean Villa

This magnificent, gated Mediterranean villa was created in 1929 to take full advantage of the spectacular views of Carmel Bay, Point Lobos and the Pacific. A masterful example of Spanish Mediterranean-inspired architecture, it was designed by Robert Stanton and authentically detailed. The six bedroom, seven plus bath home is distinguished by a creamy stucco facade, a gorgeously weathered tile roof and a classical Carmel stone interior courtyard. The well proportioned rooms are bathed in sunshine, opening to the intimate courtyard and offering breathtaking views of the Pacific. The main rooms feature soaring cathedral ceilings with massive, exposed beams, giving a grand, yet warmly intimate feeling. The interior features thick plaster walls, tall, sunny French doors and, of course, a state-of-the-art family kitchen—all brilliantly designed for private living or gracious entertaining. $19,900,000

Scenic Road Beach House

This is an extremely rare opportunity to own the ultimate beach house on the sand in Carmel-by-the-Sea. This two bedroom, two bath home has wonderful open, informal living areas with high beamed ceilings. Panoramic white water oceanfront views of Carmel Bay from Point Lobos to Pebble Beach. Step from your patio onto the sand and enjoy spectacular sunsets. $8,000,000

Stylish Tuscan Villa

Enjoy spectacular white water views of Carmel Beach and Pescadero Point! Built by Tescher only four years ago, this three bedroom, three and one half bath home is impeccably appointed throughout. A chic, European feeling with tastefully decorated rooms and French doors opening to the view balcony give this distinctive home a casual elegance that is irresistible. $3,200,000

Elegant Carmel Home

This elegant home is traditionally finished with impeccable taste. In superb condition, it features three bedrooms, three full baths, three fireplaces and cozy, walk-in wet bar. The private guest bedroom wing opens to a luxurious courtyard and gardens. Light and bright inside with beautifully manicured, mature landscaping outside. $1,800,000

Carmel at Point Lobos

This incomparable and rare property consists of 2.5+ wooded pine and oak acres with views of Carmel Bay and Pebble Beach. First time ever on the market. It's been in the same family for 102 yrs. Surrounded by California State Park lands, it is gently sloped with several superb building sites. Utilities and new well are in - ready to build your dream home, guest house, stables or whatever. $1,350,000

Pasadera lies just east of Laguna Seca Golf Club, and the pro shop can be reached by calling 647-2421 or visiting www.pasadera.com.

Pebble Beach Golf Links, Pebble Beach – Situated on scenic coastal land originally slated for housing developments, Pebble Beach opened to the public in 1919 and is considered one of the greatest courses in the world. The 6,726-yard par 72 course was designed by Jack Neville and Douglass Grant, but Jack Nicklaus designed the new par-3 5th Hole, which was dedicated in November 1998. Although the course is open to the public, priority is given to resort guests. Tom Kite, David Frost and David Duval share the course record 62. For more information, call golf reservations at (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebble-beach.com

Peter Hay, Pebble Beach – The only executive-length course on the Peninsula – called so because it's made up entirely of par-3 holes and thus can be played during a business man's lunch hour – Peter Hay features a compact 9-hole course open to the public for $20 a round. The course is named after one of Pebble Beach's favorite golf figures, Peter Hay, a Scot who was born in Aberdeen on Feb. 4, 1885, and first came to Del Monte in 1916. For more information on playing Peter Hay, call 622-8723.

Poppy Hills Golf Course, Pebble Beach – Commissioned by the Northern California Golf Association, the 6,822-yard par 72 Poppy Hills was designed by Robert Trent Jones, Jr. in 1986 and is open to the public. Pro Matt Gogel holds the course record of 62. For reservations call 625-2035 or visit www.ncga.org

The Preserve Golf Course, Carmel Valley – Tom Fazio designed this private, 6,996-yard par 72 course located deep within the Santa Lucia Preserve. The course opened in 2000. Contact the golf shop at 620-6871 for more information.

Quail Lodge Resort and Golf Club, Carmel Valley – The 6,449-yard par 71 Quail Lodge course – abundant with ponds and colorful landscaping – was designed in 1963 by Robert Muir Graves. Pro Bobby Clampett shares the course record 62 with Lennie Clements, and the California Women's Amateur Championship is held there each year. For more information on playing this resort course, contact the golf shop at 620-8808 or visit www.quail-lodge-resort.com.

Rancho Cañada Golf Club, Carmel Valley – Situated along the Carmel River and on surrounding lands, Rancho Cañada features two 18-hole courses: the 6,349-yard par 71 West course and the 6,109-yard par 71 East course. Pro golfer Sam Snead once said the 15th Hole on Rancho Cañada's West course was the narrowest hole he had ever played. Both designed by Robert Dean Putnam in 1971, these courses are open to the public. Contact the golf shop at 624-0111 or visit www.ranchocanada.com for more information.

Spyglass Hill Golf Course, Pebble Beach – Designed in 1966 by Robert Trent Jones, Sr., this resort/semi-private course, measuring 6,862 yards at par 72, also accepts public play. The year after it was completed, Spyglass replaced Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Dunes Course in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament, and has been part of the tournament ever since. For reservations, call (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebblebeach.com

Tehama Golf Club, Carmel Valley – Jay Morrish designed this 6,457-yard par 71 course high in the hills above Carmel Valley. Owned by former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, the course opened for private play in 1999. For more information, contact the business office at 622-2200.

Again this year, the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am brings some of the country's biggest celebrities to the Monterey Peninsula. Spectators in search of an autograph or a photo typically attend the Celebrity Challenge on Wednesday morning because cameras are prohibited during the Pro-Am tournament, which runs from Thursday to Sunday. Playing in this year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am are:

Harris Barton

A tackle for the San Francisco 49ers from 1987 to 1998, Barton was drafted in the first round of the 1987 NFL draft after a stellar collegiate career at the University of North Carolina where he earned a degree in business. Barton was regarded as one of the best-prepared and smartest linemen in the NFL. He also must have been one of the toughest: he was picked by John Madden for the All-Madden Team four times. After retiring, Barton joined Ronnie Lott in forming a venture capital firm, Champion Ventures. Barton supports numerous civic and charitable organizations and, in 1995, he donated $100,000 to his alma mater in honor of his father, Paul, who died in 1994 after a long battle with brain cancer. Barton has also long supported the National Brain Tumor Foundation. At 6' 4" he'll surely be the biggest golfer at this year's Pro-Am.

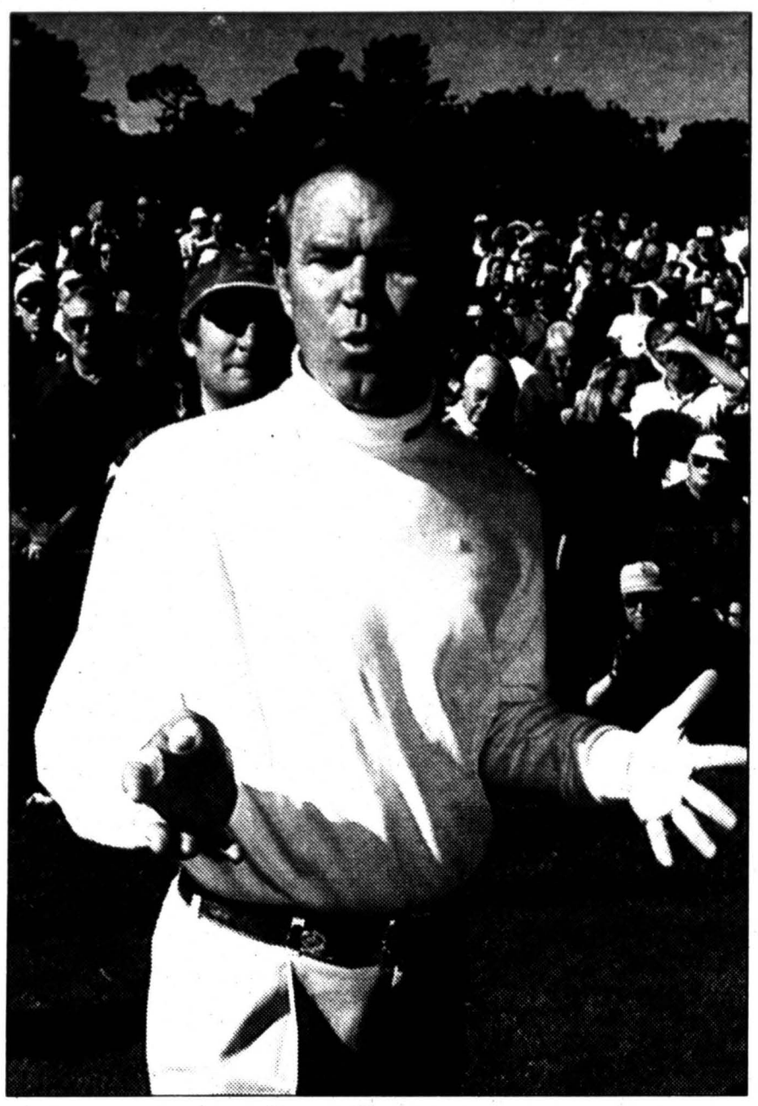
Michael Bolton

One of the world's top-selling vocalists and song writers, Bolton grew up idolizing such pioneers of R&B as Ray Charles, Otis Redding and Marvin Gaye. Blessed with an incomparable voice, Bolton has sold more than 45 million albums during his career. With two Grammys for Best Male Vocalist, six American Music Awards, a string of No. 1 hits (including more than 100 songs he has written for other world-renowned artists), sold-out concerts for millions of people around the globe and many humanitarian and industry awards to his credit, Bolton continues to rise and expand. One recent album "Timeless (The Classics), Vol. 2," features interpretations of songs by Marvin Gaye, Al Green, Bill Withers, Bob Dylan and more.

Glen Campbell

After more than 30 years as one of the most successful stars in the music business, Glen Campbell says it's not the stardom that drives him. "I'm a musician – a guitar player, and a singer," he explains. "And I love playing. That's the fun of it."

Music has been the driving force in Campbell's life since he learned how to play guitar at the age of 4. Born in Delight, Arkansas, he is the seventh son in a family of eight boys and four girls, all of whom played guitar and sang.



Glen Campbell

At 14 he left home to pursue a career in music. He started with a three-piece band in Houston. Then he moved to Albuquerque and joined a Western swing band led by his uncle, Dick Bills.

At 24, Campbell moved to Los Angeles, where he quickly found studio work as a guitarist. He also toured with the Champs, who had the 1958 No. 1 single "Tequila." His first success came with a pop ballad, "Turn Around, Look at Me," on the Crest label. He then signed with Capitol, where his singing and instrumental prowess were showcased on a bluegrass album, "Big Bluegrass Special."

In the meantime, Campbell had all the session work he could want. He played on records by Frank Sinatra, Nat King Cole, Merle Haggard, Elvis Presley, Ray Charles and the Mamas and the Papas. In 1965, he even toured as a member of the Beach Boys during the absence of Brian Wilson.

Finally, in 1967, Campbell made a breakthrough under his own name. He took a song that appeared to be all wrong for a pop hit, with a rambling lyric, no chorus and a folk-country feel. For the first of many times to come, he recorded a song simply because he thought it was a great song, and "Gentle on My Mind" went on to become not only his signature song, but one of the most played singles in history.

He hosted a summer replacement TV show for the Smothers Brothers in 1968, which was so successful that he had his own show, "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour," through 1972. He earned a pair of gold singles in 1969 with "Wichita Lineman" and "Galveston." Campbell hit No. 1 on the country, pop and easy-listening charts in 1975 with "Rhinestone Cowboy," and he topped the pop charts again in 1977 with "Southern Nights." He starred in two movies, "True Grit" (with John Wayne) and "Norwood," and has recorded an album with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

Jimmy Connors

Five-time winner of the U.S. Open, twice winner of Wimbledon and ranked number one male tennis pro in the world from 1974 to 1978, few players have impacted their sport so dramatically and for as great a length of time as Jimmy Connors. While his relentless style and booming ground strokes enable him to batter opponents into submission, his enthusiasm and outspoken personality have endeared him to fans the world over.

In his career, Jimmy Connors has compiled a record of 125 singles titles. Among those are eight Grand Slam titles and nine Champions Tour titles. In doubles Connors has also been very successful, winning 21 titles during his career, with two being Grand Slam titles and two others on the Champions Tour. Connors was ranked No. 1 for 159 consecutive weeks, the longest hold on the No. 1 spot in the history of men's tennis.

Alice Cooper

Singing artist whose unique hits included "Welcome to My Nightmare," "No More Mr. Nice Guy" and "School's Out," Cooper is an excellent golfer and a regular at the AT&T Pro-Am.

Kevin Costner

Winner of the 1991 Best Director Oscar for "Dances with Wolves," Costner has starred in more than 20 motion pictures.

Born and raised in California, Costner has a degree in marketing from Cal-State Fullerton, where a local production of Rumpelstilskin started a fairy tale career that made him into one Hollywood's all-time leading men.

His first two attention-getting movies were "The Untouchables" and "No Way Out," followed by a pair of contrasting baseball films, the iconoclastic "Bull Durham" and the inspirational hit, "Field of Dreams."

Costner then used his new Hollywood clout by making "Dances with Wolves."

Carson Daly

Host of the hottest show on MTV, "Total Request Live," Carson Daly is "tall, dark and handsome, plus charming, witty and humble," according to a recent magazine profile in his home town, Palm Springs. Just 28 years old, Daly is the host of a show that has become an obsession for many young people. "TRL is like a giant musical youth hostel that's out of control, and I'm like the gatekeeper and the warden all in one," Daly observes in amazement.

William Devane

Perhaps best known for his 10-year stint as a corporate cad on "Knot's Landing," Devane has appeared in numerous TV mini-series and more than 20 films, including "Marathon Man," "Yanks," "Payback" and "Hollow Man."

Tom Dreesen

A comedian who has played Vegas, Reno and Atlantic City with the likes of Liza Minelli and Sammy Davis, Jr., and who spent a decade as Frank Sinatra's opening act, has also appeared in many network television shows including more than 50 appearances on the "Tonight Show" and guest roles on TV shows such as "Columbo," "Gabriels Fire," "Murder She Wrote" and "Touched By An Angel." To show his versatility, he once recorded a comedy album, "That White Boy's Crazy," before an all black audience. According to Dreesen, he never strayed too far from his old neighborhood, and to show appreciation, the city of Harvey, Ill. named a street after him, "Dreesen Street," on Aug. 22, 1992.

Clint Eastwood

Mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea from 1986 to 1988 and supporter of numerous local causes, Eastwood is a familiar face on the Monterey Peninsula. Winner of Best Director and Best Actor Oscars for "Unforgiven" (1992), Eastwood has appeared in, produced and/or directed more than 50 motion pictures, from "Revenge of the Creature" (1955) to "Space Cowboys" (2000). KEVIN COSTNER

December 2000 he was honored by the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts for his lifetime achievements in the arts. Eastwood, a co-owner of the Pebble Beach Company, is chairman of the board of the Monterey Peninsula Foundation, the charity group that hosts the AT&T Pro-Am.

DAVID JAMES ELLIOTT

The star of CBS's "Jag" – where he portrays Commander Harmon Rabb, a fictional pilot-turned-Navy-lawyer – Elliot has become a major force on prime time television. He reportedly has a six handicap and keeps a putting green in his trailer on the lot. A native of Toronto, Elliot starred in a Canadian drama from 1985 to 1988 and appeared on "Knott's Landing" and "Melrose Place" before getting his own show. But he credits his one-time appearance as Carl the moving guy on "Seinfeld" with opening more doors than all his other credits combined.

GLENN FREY

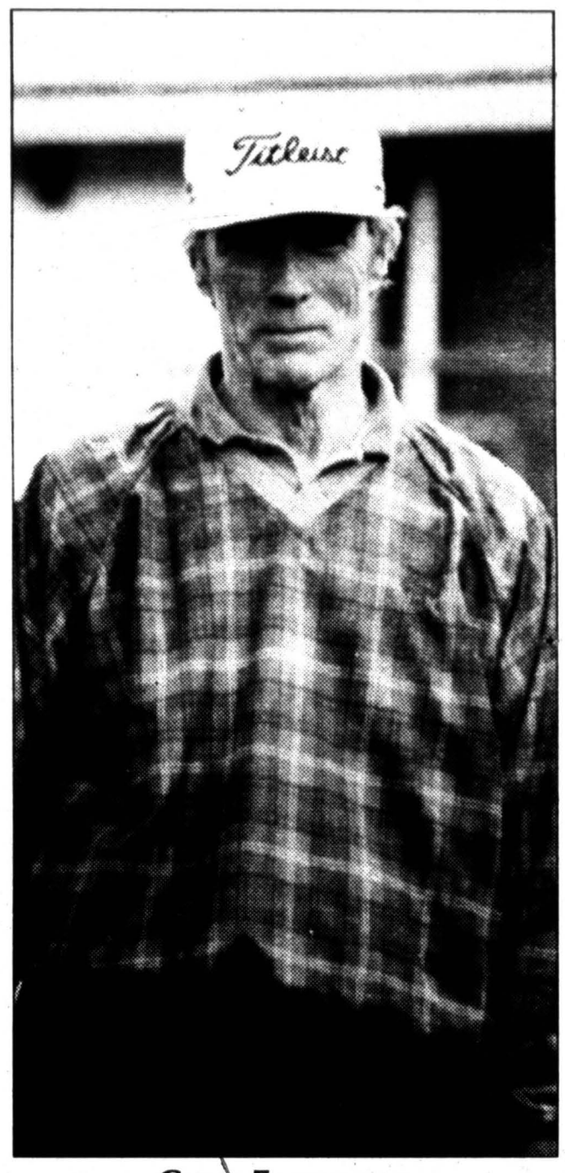
As a founding member of the Eagles, Frey helped create a new genre of rock-and-roll-music with such hits as "Hotel California" and "Lyin' Eyes."

His solo career, with songs like "The Heat is On," (from the movie "Beverly Hills Cop" and "Smuggler's Blues" (a spin-off from "Miami Vice"), has been even more successful.

Frey is also an accomplished actor, having been featured in such television shows as "Miami Vice," "Wise Guy," "South of Sunset," and "Nash Bridges." He also appeared in "Jerry Maguire," as an NFL general manager.

KENNY G

Legendary saxophonist and the best-selling instrumentalist/musician in the world, Kenny G has been a constant presence on the Billboard charts for more than 15 years. His career as a saxophonist began at 17 when he backed-up Barry



CLINT EASTWOOD

White in a concert in Seattle, Kenny G's home town. When he signed his first recording contract in 1982, a new era in instrumental music was born.

sons, batting .308 with 2,201 hits and 148 home runs.

THOMAS HAMPSON

Perhaps the biggest heartthrob in the world of opera, Thomas Hampson is also considered the leading baritone of his generation. Originally from Spokane, Wash., America's leading baritone enjoys an international career that has taken him to all the world's most prestigious stages and concert halls and has made him one of today's most sought-after soloists. Among his recent portrayals have been the title role in "William Tell" (Vienna), "Eugene Onegin" (Vienna & Paris), in Ambroise Thomas' "Hamlet" (Monte Carlo and San Francisco), and in the rarely heard baritone version of Massenet's "Werther" (New York). His recordings have won numerous, outstanding international awards, as well as six Grammy nominations. He arrives at the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am after concerts in New York and Miami. And he must not be expecting to make the cut to Sunday's final round – he has a recital scheduled at UCLA that night.

REGGIE JACKSON

"Mr. October" hit three home runs on three pitches in the 1977 World Series and is the only player to be named MVP in two World Series. Jackson was a star outfielder for the Oakland Athletics during the team's glory days in the early 1970s and – despite constant battles with manager Bill Martin and owner George Steinbrenner – led the New York Yankees to a string of league and World Series titles. Jackson was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1993. He is an ardent car collector and lives in the Carmel area.

SAMUEL L. JACKSON

One of Hollywood's most durable stars, Jackson's biggest role was as John Travolta's partner in the 1994 instant gangster classic, "Pulp Fiction." Born in 1948 in Washington, D.C., Jackson has appeared in more than 30 major films. His other hits include, "Star Wars Episode I – The Phantom Menace," "Jurassic Park" and "A Time to Kill."

KEVIN JAMES

Comedian Kevin James stars as Doug Heffernan, the hard-working parcel delivery man who loves his big screen TV as much as his beautiful wife on the prime-time CBS comedy "The King of Queens." James is a native of Stony Brook, Long Island. He was born on April 26, 1965, and attended Cortland State University in N.Y. for three years and then got his start in stand-up comedy, which is his first love. He got his big break at the 1996 Montreal Comedy Festival and was cast in a recurring role in the comedy series "Everybody Loves Raymond," starring his best friend, Ray Romano.

HUEY LEWIS

A native of New York, Lewis created his breakthrough group, Huey Lewis and the News, in Marin County in 1980. Their first album produced a top-10 hit, "Do You Believe in Love?" and was followed by five other top-20 recordings. Lewis also recorded the theme song, "The Power of Love," for the movie "Back to the Future."

BILL MURRAY

A favorite at the AT&T Pro-Am, Murray is one of America's unique talents. Born in 1950 in Wilmette, Ill., Murray first moved to the nation's center stage when he joined the cast of Saturday Night Live in 1977. While still with SNL, Murray made his first hit film, "Meatballs." Soon after, he was transformed into Carl Speckler, assistant greenskeeper, in the classic golf comedy, "Caddyshack." That film was directed by Harold Ramis, who starred with Murray in "Ghostbusters" (1984) and directed him again in "Groundhog Day" (1993). His next film, "The Wedding Contract," is due out next year.

CRAIG T. NELSON

CRAIG T. NELSON

Star of the CBS show, "The District," where he portrays Chief Jack Mannion, Craig Richard Nelson was born April 4, 1946, in Spokane, Wash. He attended the University of Arizona and studied acting at the Oxford Theatre in Los Angeles. Nelson began his career working with Barry Levinson as a radio writer/performer and stand-up comic. He added the "T" to his name because there was another actor registered with the Screen Actor's Guild that had the same name! His previous prime-time show, "Coach," was a major hit from 1989 to 1997.

CHRIS O'DONNELL

A native of Winnetka, Ill., O'Donnell is best known for his portrayal of Robin in "Batman Forever" and

"Batman and Robin," and for "Scent of a Woman," which earned him a Best Supporting Actor Oscar nomination. He also got highly favorable reviews for "The Three Musketeers" in 1993.

MAURY POVICH

Now in its seventh year, Povich's syndicated talk show features real people talking about everyday problems and is a hit with young viewers. The son of legendary sports writer Shirley Povich, Maury Povich was a reporter and news anchorman before making a career as a talk show host. He is married to newswoman Connie Chung.

RAY ROMANO

Star of a CBS comedy, "Everybody Loves Raymond," Romano is expert at portraying a man who is clueless about relationships. The native New Yorker recently told USA Today that there's nothing wrong with men handling their personal lives ineptly. "Just try to be likably clueless," he said.

TOMMY SMOTHERS

With his brother, Dick, Tommy Smothers formed a comedy duo that always seemed to be ahead of its time.

The Smothers Brothers' first professional appearance was at The Purple Onion in San Francisco in 1959 and their first national television appearance was on The Jack Paar show on Jan. 28, 1961. They had their own prime time comedy shows in the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s, produced 12 top-selling albums and have made countless appearances in Las Vegas and around the country.

According to his official bio, Tom's "passion is for golf," which is no surprise to fans of the AT&T who, during lulls in play, have also been treated to his amazing yo-yo tricks.

DONALD TRUMP

One of New York's dominant personalities, Trump has altered the Manhattan skyline with numerous distinctive building projects (which he often names for himself), including Fifth Avenue's "Trump Tower." He is also a chairman of the board of a corporation that owns one of Atlantic City's biggest casinos, the Taj Mahal. Trump got his start in the real estate business from his father, Fred, who developed numerous middle-class housing projects in various NYC boroughs. From that (relatively modest) beginning, the outspoken and flamboyant Donald Trump became the most daring real estate developer of the last 20 years. His latest project is The Trump World Tower which, at 90 floors, is New York's tallest residential building.

CLAY WALKER

Singer/guitarist and one of the U.S.A.'s biggest Country and Western stars, Walker began performing professionally at 16 in his native Beaumont, Texas. In the fall of 1993 his first single, "What's It To You," went straight to number one on the charts. His biggest selling albums are "Say No More" and "Live Laugh Love." Walker is considered a modest individual and says he sees himself in the face of each and every fan. "When we make records," he says, "it's final. The records will always be the same, but it's the fans who give life to the music. On stage, you know immediately if you are really reaching people."

JAMES WOODS

Perhaps the most intense actor in America, Woods has frightened or fascinated audiences in movies like "The Onion Field," "Once Upon a Time in America," "Salvador," "Ghosts of Mississippi" and last year's "Any Given Sunday." In 1999, he co-starred in the Clint Eastwood-directed "True Crime."
